DECLARES SHOOTING NEEDLESS

Witness to South End Tragedy Says Miller Might Easily Have Caught Shea.

VICTIM IS BURIED

Patrolman Charles W. Miller, who shot and killed young Ralph P. Shea on Warren street the morning of Bunker Hill Day, could have caught Shea without shooting him and did not have to fire in self-defence, according to a witness to the tragedy, who was discovered today.

This new witness is "Jack" Moriarty of No. 99 Warrenton street. He is employed on Winter street.

In a circumstantial account of the shooting Moriarty concludes thus:

"He (Shea) did not have Miller's club in his hand, as Miller said. Miller, in my opinion, cannot claim he shot in self-defence. Shea was fleeing, and Miller could have captured him without shooting."

Another development in the case today was the formal application of the police department today for a warrant for the arrest of Patrolman Miller on a charge of manslaughter, an action taken in accordance with the regular departmental routine in such cases, and in no wise prejudicing Miller. Judge Sullivan of Boston Municipal Court took the request under advisement.

Many at Funeral of Shea.

While this formality was on the funeral of Shea was taking place. Thousands of friends of the youth gathered at the Shea home, No. 75 Cortez street, South End, and followed the body to St. James' Church on Harrison avenue. There was a magnificent floral display.

The application for a manslaughter warrant against Miller was made by Captain Ainsley C. Armstrong of the bureau of criminal investigation, and Sergeant Jeremiah Mosher of Lagrange street station, with which Miller is connected.

They brought before Judge Sullivan about ten witnesses to the shooting, Judge Sullivan listened to their stories, getting both sides of the tragedy.

Moriarty Tells of Shooting.

While the hearing was held behind closed doors, it was practically an executive session, as all were grouped close to the judge's bench. Testimony of witnesses when application is made for a warrant on such a serious charge is not made public.

So far as known "Jack" Moriarty,

MOTHER ON GRASS FINED $1

Rule Mrs. Fraser Violated Ordinance by Sitting On Sward On Common.

COMPANION FINED A CENT

Mrs. Ella Mae Fraser, who was arrested while sitting on the grass in the Common with her children, was today fined $1 by Judge Burke in the Municipal Court. This is what is known as the "Trosh Alc" case.

Mrs. Rose Zumelman of No. 7 Endicott street, who was sitting with her, was fined one cent.

Mrs. Fraser claims that "Officer 499," who arrested her, was brutal, twisted her arm and haled her children to the police station without reason. She asserted that she saw no sign forbidding sitting on the grass and that she was creating no disturbance.

Attorney Scharton announced that he would fight the case to the Supreme Court if necessary.

"I intend to make a test case of this," he declared, as he appealed fro mthe decision of Judge Burke.

Judge Upholds Police.

Judge Burke, in imposing the fine, said:

"There is a city ordinance forbidding persons from sitting on the Common, no matter whether it is fair or not—with that part of it we have nothing to do—it is there and must be obeyed.

"I do not think that Officer Kelley was so cruel as alleged. In fact, I believe that the police board of Boston is deserving of confidence. In the whole number of policemen there may be a few who could be justly criticised.

"But I cannot believe that this officer was unduly cruel in carrying out the letter of the ordinance and as long as that ordinance exists I fine Mrs. Fraser $1 and Mrs. Zumelman one cent."

Officer Kelly arrested Mrs. Fraser Friday, June 13. He testified that she would not give her name and refused to move. He said she knocked off his helmet and scratched his hand. She was so unmanageable, he said, that he was obliged to call on a private citizen in getting her to the box.

Denies Knocking Off Helmet.

Mrs. Fraser denied that she knocked off the officer's hat, and showed the court how the officer took hold of her hands and grasped her by the arm.

Mrs. Zumelman testified that Officer Kelley took both hands of Mrs. Fraser and held them behind her back, but she didn't see Mrs. Fraser knock off his helmet. She thought that the officer was unnecessarily rough.

Mrs. Fraser when asked about the verdict said:

"What has a poor fother to do in Boston these warm days? Here I am fined one dollar for sitting on the grass of Boston Common. My children enjoy going there. I do not know here I can take my children in the afternoon, as I am not abiet to take them far, for this costs far fares.

"The officer was very unkind to me. He just treated me dreadfully. I could have had a kind word for $20, but he did not give it. He just grabbed me and left his mark upon my arm.

My children just love the Common. I must keep them in. You can't take children to the Common without having them run at times on the grass. I watch them carefully all the time, but when I am not looking they are on the grass before I know it.

They should have a place set apaft just for mothers and their children on that Common, where mothers would be free from the cruel action sof the police.

MILITANT IN ASCOT TRAGEDY

Male Suffragist Fatally Hurt Trying to Shoot Jockey in $17,500 Race.

ROYAL PAIR SEES ATTEMPT

ASCOT HEATH, England, June 19.—A male suffragist, emulating the feat of Miss Emily Wilding Davison, who was fatally injured trying to break up the Derby, dashed on to the race course here today during the running of the $17,500 gold cup event, the chief race of the day, and tried to ruin the event.

Drawing a revolver from his pocket he pressed the weapon against Jockey Whalley, who was riding August Belmont's horse Tracery, but before he could pull the trigger the iron shod hoofs of another horse in the race struck him, knocking him to the course.

The man was picked up unconscious and carried into the paddock, where it was found his skull was fractured. Doctors said he could hardly recover.

The man had taken a position as near as possible to the enclosure occupied by King George and Queen Mary. He stood at the rail and the guard on duty to prevent just such outrages had no warning of the tragic incident.

Waves Suffrage Flag.

The royal party and the great throngs of fashionable spectators, including many foreign tourists, had their eyes levelled upon the stretch when, with a shout, the man leaped out on the track.

Before anyone could interfere he had drawn a suffrage flag and a revolver from his pocket and dashed amongst the running horses. Tracery was evidently aimed for a royal entry. When the man levelled his weapon, he waved his flag and shouted something which was lost in thunder of the horses' hoofs. Tracery swerved, throwing Jockey Whalley, who turned a somersault in midair. Another horse, however, which was running neck and neck with the Belmont entry struck the suffragist, flattening him to the course.

The multitude was struck into horrified inaction and silence, so swiftly was the tragic scene enacted. A moment later they lifted the forms of Whalley and the suffragist. The former was found to be unhurt.

King George and Queen Mary sent a courier to ascertain the suffragist's identity and his condition.

The Belmont horse had been second favorite and in all probability would have won if it had not been interfered with. As it was, Prince Palatine won the event, Stradlast was second and Alcpno third.

Swedish Crown Prince There.

In the royal enclosure with their majesties was Ex-King Manuel of Portugal, the Crown Prince of Sweden, the Crown Princess and a majority of the members of the titled aristocracy. This was known as "Ladies' day," which accounted for the extremely large number of women present.

After the suffragist had been knocked down, another man, evidently a companion, dashed from the spectators and picked up the revolver. Turning to the crowd, which had begun to stream upon the course, he waved the weapon in a threatening manner and held them back. He fled and mingled with the crowd so successfully the police could not find him.

Gibbons Boy Found.

John Francis Gibbons, who has been mysteriously missing from his home at No. 208 Centre street, Jamaica Plain, since Sunday, has been located in Gloversville, N. Y.

Girl Victim of Taxi Today Near Death

Chauffeur Not Blamed for Accident to Iris Sundberg.

Miss Iris Sundberg, twenty-one, who was run over by an automobile at Beacon and Park streets, is at the Relief Hospital today near death.

John J. Talbot of No. 123 Charles street, who drove the automobile, was not arrested, as after an investigation the police decided Talbot was not to blame for the accident.

The young woman has been studying in a nurses' training school. Her mother, Mrs. Matilda Sundberg, makes her home with another daughter, Mrs. Robert J. Keane, at No. 21 Glade avenue, Jamaica Plain.

WARTIME COACHES IN USE

Relics of Old Days Still Doing Service On New Haven, Says Witness.

2257 WOODEN CARS IN 1913

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., June 19.—One of the most surprising bits of testimony today at the investigation of the Stamford wreck, a week ago, was that of G. W. Wilden, mechanical superintendent of the New Haven road, who said that all but thirty-one of the road's total equipment of 2,288 were wooden cars. He told of the construction of the train in the tragic collision.

It was further brought out in Mr. Wilden's testimony that ninety-six cars, now in service on the New Haven Railroad, were made between 1862 and the Centennial year of 1876.

Patrick J. Langan, the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad expert, was recalled to the stand as the first witness of the day. General Manager Bardo questioned him.

The official called attention to the emphasis that has been placed on Engineer Doherty's inability to reverse his engine. Langan said that a locomotive should never be reversed after the emergency brake was applied.

Langan swore that if the brakes were working properly and Doherty had applied them as he testified, that is, first a reduction of fifteen pounds and then ten pounds on his air gauge, his train should have been stopped 271 feet on the safe side of the danger point. He based this opinion, he said, on the result of test

EXPERTS BLAME NEW HAVEN FOR WRECK.

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., June 19.—Expert railroad men testified here today that the N. Y., N. H. & H. Railroad was at fault in allowing Charles J. Doherty, a young and inexperienced engine driver, to run the nonderous mogel engine which crashed into the rear of the first section of the Springfield express at Stamford last Thursday with the loss of six lives. This testimony was given at the joint investigation of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Connecticut Utilities Commission. "It is our task now to find out who was responsible for putting Doherty on that run," said Commissioner McChord after hearing that evidence.

Rourke Upheld in Lamp Economies

Supreme Court Rules He Does Not Have to Buy Gas Type.

Louis K. Rourke, commissioner of public works, was upheld today by the full bench of the Supreme Court in his refusal to spend the $300,000 appropriated by the City Council for the purchase of 11,000 street gas lamps. Councillor Smith had filed a petition with the Supreme Court asking that Commissioner O'Rourke be compelled to spend the appropriation as ordered by the City Council.

Rourke contended that he could save considerable money for the city by accepting the bid of the Edison company to replace the gas mantle lamps of a gas company with electric tungsten lamps, which would save the city $5.25 on each lamp. He claims that the city will save a total of $77,904.13 each year.

Wedding Postponed by Eugenics Bride

CHICAGO, June 19.—Miss Ethel Wahl did not become the bride of James H. Harmon here because she believed in the hygienic theory that both bride and groom should be in perfect health when they are wed. A slight ailment in her throat made a surgical operation necessary a few days ago, and Miss Wahl recalled the wedding invitations issued for the ceremony. The wedding will take place in the Fall.

run No. 5 on Tuesday when at a speed of 50½ miles an hour the train was brought to a standstill in 2,506 feet, stopping 400 feet east of the home signal.

Criticizes Judgment.

The air was applied in two instalments of fifteen pounds each. Applied as Doherty said he did, fifteen pounds first and then ten pounds, the stewart said the train would have slid thirty feet further, which would carry it to within 100 feet of the home signal. As the first section stood 171 feet west of the home signal there should still have been a margin of 271 feet, Langan thought.

The witness was asked whether he thought Doherty had used good judgment in applying the air as he said he had at the point he stated before reaching the distance signal.

"In my opinion he used very poor judgment," said the expert.

"Why?" asked Mr. Bardo.

"Because in his own testimony," replied Langan, "he said the air brakes were working badly."

"Was this young man familiar with this run?" asked Mr. McChord.

"He had run the same train three days," announced Mr. Bardo.

"That is all" said Mr. McChord.

Charles W. Martin, Airbrake Inspector on the Pennsylvania Railroad, was called. He was a clean-cut looking man of forty-five years and created a good impression by his frank and businesslike manner. He was questioned by Mr. Belknap.

Must Be Qualified.

"You were on the train during the experimental tests?" "Yes, sir," answered the witness.

"I want to ask you whether from your inspection of that train and what you know of it you would have permitted it to leave the Pennsylvania station?"

"Not on the Pennsylvania limited."

"As a matter of fact, would you have permitted it to leave as one of any of your fast through trains?"

"No, I would not."

Mr. Martin described the qualifications required of engineers operating through passenger trains on the Pennsylvania Railroad. They must serve several years on through freight trains and are required to pass a special examination when about to be promoted to a passenger run.

On their first trips they are also required to run their trains at first under the eye of a road foreman of engines on the division over which they are to operate. Mr. Martin was handed Engineer Doherty's testimony as to his service and promotion to passenger service, which was given him after only about a year on freight runs. After perusing it, Mr. Belknap asked him:

No Fit for Work.

"After reading the experience Mr. Doherty had, do you think he should have been placed in charge of such a train as No. 537?

"No, I do not," replied the expert. "Not while there was another man available."

Attorney Spock, the New Haven attorney, made a point that the disastrous trip of the train was the sixth that Doherty had taken charge of.

In answer to Mr. Spock's question, the expert said he had examined the brakes on engine No. 1338, on Tuesday morning last, preparatory to the experimental tests and found them "in first-class condition."

On the subject of signals, Mr. Martin declared that very often in foggy weather he had known engineers on the Pennsylvania to lose an hour in the short run between New York and Philadelphia and have "not a word said to them." Can this to avoid passing an opposing signal was the only explanation needed and it was understood.

Chester L. Lardner, an airbrake expert of the Westinghouse company, was next called. Most of his testimony was a repetition of that given by the experts who preceded him and much of it was of a technical character. He declared that the brakes on engine No. 1338 were "perfect."

Says Brakes Were Right.

Charles A. McConville, the New Haven engineer, who occupied Doherty's place on No. 138 last Tuesday during the test runs, swore that the brakes on the locomotive were good and that the brakes on the other engines of the same type were very satisfactory. The only trouble he had on the test run of 1338 was with the air pump "governor," and it had stopped working and had to receive attention, some dirt or foreign substance having gotten under it, he said.

McConville swore that he had the reverse lever on engine 1338 and found no trouble in operating it. Mr. Belknap developed that McConville weighs 208 pounds and is five feet ten inches in height. He weighs over fifty pounds more than Doherty.

Thomas L. Burton, another Westinghouse airbrake inspector, corroborated the testimony of the experts and explained the use of the "governor" on the air pump. It is a regulator to keep the pressure at the desired normal point, he said.

John F. Carroll, the road foreman of engines of the New Haven road, who Doherty declared had said to him on the second day before the wreck, "For God's sake look out, the air brakes on these engines are not working right. Bardo is raising hell, and be sure to shut off your brakes in time," was called to the stand.

Cautioned Engineers.

He was questioned by General Manager Bardo himself and made to recall a conversation with that officer a short time before the fatal wreck with Doherty.

"What did I tell you?" asked Mr. Bardo.

"You told me," replied Carroll, "that we had been having too much trouble and that I must caution all engineers."

"And did you?"

"Yes."

"Did you caution Doherty?"

"Yes, I did. He told me he had come near running by the signal at Bridgeport, and I told him 'for God's sake to be careful and put on his brakes in time.'"

"Did you say anything about the air brakes working badly in these engines?"

"No, I told him Engineer Harmon had got into trouble and for him to be careful and see that it didn't happen to him."

Mr. Belknap wanted the witness to tell him whether he had said anything to Doherty about water cocks on 1338. He admitted he had "in a general way."

"The water cocks on these engines were working badly, weren't they?" asked Mr. Belknap.

"No," replied the witness and then he added after a pause: "Only some of them didn't work."

Carroll declared that he didn't ride with Doherty because "he thought he had done a day's work that day."

Commissioner McChord drew from the witness the admission that probably 400 engineers were in the jurisdiction of himself and only three other road foremen.

The commissioner asked for Doherty's record, which shows that he had made a total of only 237 trips on freight and switch engines as engineer before being given the important through run.

"And the rules of your company make it possible for such a man to be given such a position?" asked Mr. McChord.

"Yes, sir," was the answer.

The commissioner addressed the men at the table where sat General Manager Bardo and his lawyer and his assistants and said: "Now, gentlemen, we want to get at the bottom of this and find out just who is responsible for putting this young man on that train run."

Albert A. Harris, general foreman of roundhouse repairs of the New Haven road, testified that each engineman was required to report daily in detail any repairs needed by his machine and that the mechanic who made the repairs was required to sign this report after the repairs were made.

Mr. Belknap read from the roundhouse records a long list of these repair reports all concerning engines of the same type as 1338, and in a large proportion of them there appeared no signatures to show that the work had been done.

Saved Responsibility.

The witness admitted that the mechanics often did not like to sign the reports "because they feared that if anything happened they might be held responsible."

The witness said he had nothing to do with putting men on passenger runs.

"My understanding is that under the agreement the company has with the union," he said, "a man after he has been an engineer a certain time (one year) must be given the first run in the order in which his name is placed on the 'spare board.'"

The most important train on the road could be assigned to any special man, he declared, but would have to go to the man who headed the list.

"That doesn't mean that an incompetent would get it, does it?" asked Commissioner McChord.

"No, sir," replied the witness.

"The company is not compelled to employ incompetent men?"

"Oh, no."

Over 2,000 Wooden Cars.

G. W. Wildin, mechanical superintendent of the New Haven, described the construction of the equipment of train 53, both sections. All of the cars, he said, were built of wood. Locomotive No. 1338, he said, had been damaged only to the extent of $300 in the wreck. The total car equipment of the New Haven road, the witness said, numbered a total of 2,288. All but thirty-two of these were wooden cars.

The thirty-one were all steel. Mr. Wildin read from a prepared record a list of all the cars owned by the company with the date of their construction. This record showed cars still in existence on the road which were built as far back as 1862. No less than ninety-six cars were shown to be still in existence on the line that were constructed between that year and 1876, the succeeding year, as follows: One in 1863, one in 1865, three in 1866, one in 1867, one in 1868, eight in 1869, ten in 1870, eight in 1871, eighteen in 1872, twelve in 1873, seven in 1874, sixteen in 1875 and fifteen in 1876.

Doherty on Stand.

Engineer Doherty of the fated train followed Mr. Wildin on the stand. Before he answered any questions by Attorney David E. Fitzgerald, addressed the court and said he would reserve the right to advise his client not to answer any questions that he thought should not be answered. At the hearing before the joint State and federal inquiry, the attorney said the witness had both federal and State rights which must be protected. He wanted Doherty to give all the information he properly could.

Attorney Spock, the railroad attorney, began by asking the young engineer whether he had not failed in one of his examinations, which he admitted having already testified to that effect. The attorney led Doherty back over that part of his previous testimony in which he had sworn that Carroll, the road foreman, had cautioned him about the air brakes on engine 1338 working badly. He could not be diverted from his early testimony and insisted that Carroll had used the language he quoted. Asked how far he could see the distant signal approaching Stamford, Doherty said he could not see it until he was about 400 feet east of it coming around a curve.

"What did you do when you first saw it?" asked the lawyer.

"I applied my service brakes fifteen pounds reduction, but got very little results," replied Doherty.

Found Engine Weak.

"Where did you apply the emergency brake?"

"When I was about 300 feet from the train ahead."

"How did your engine operate on the return, after you made the notation on the work book on Tuesday about the brakes?"

"Fairly weak, because I was very careful."

"You found the brakes working better?"

"Well, I had trouble once and I was very cautious with the engine."

"You took no chances?"

"No, sir."

"What other trips did you run on that Tuesday?"

"Two trains between Stamford and New Haven."

"How did you find the brakes on these trips?"

"Just as I say, I took no chances that day."

"Where do you say you shut off ahead of the collision?"

"As soon as I saw the distant signal."

"How far from the signal?"

"I should say from 300 to 400 feet from the distant signal."

"Is it down grade?"

"Yes sir, all down grade."

"How much air did you use?"

"I think I reduced to 80 pounds."

"Didn't you tell the coroner——

Was Never Instructed.

Attorney Fitzgerald interrupted to make his first objection. It was unfair and improper, he said, to make a comparison at this hearing with Doherty's testimony at the previous inquest.

Commissioner McChord upheld him.

At the conclusion of Doherty's examination Mr. Fitzgerald asked only two questions of his client.

Doherty's answers to both made a distinct impression.

"Did anybody ever tell you just where in Stamford yard you were to stop your train to change the engine for an electrical motor?" was the first one.

"No, never," almost shouted the engineman.

"Did any road foreman ever ride with you to instruct you in the use of this new type of engine?" the attorney then asked.

"No," again replied Doherty.

"That's all," said the lawyer, and the witness was excused. A recess was taken.

The affair occurred at the corner of Stuart and Clarendon streets, where Hogan is in charge of building operations. Vox was arrested. Hogan was sent to the hospital.

20 B. & M. Clerks May Lose Positions

At least a score of clerks may lose positions in the operating and clerical departments of the Boston & Maine in the near future as a result of the adoption of a policy of retrenchment, according to a report today. Other changes in contemplation are the transfer of Superintendent John F. Piper of the terminal division to the New Haven, the transfer of W. S. Goodwin, freight agent at the Minot street yard, and the transfer of W. J. Foherty at Warren Bridge.

NEW YORK, June 19.—Gordon Benson of Brooklyn lay on a dock for an hour and forty-five minutes apparently drowned. State Tax Will Add to Boston's Rate

City Will Pay Over $2,500,000 This Year, an Increase of $500,000.

Boston's share of the State tax for 1913 is $2,652,000, according to figures issued by City Auditor Mitchell today.

This is an increase of approximately $500,000 over the amount paid in 1912 and means that 30 cents more is added to the tax rate.

With the increase in the State tax and the great increase for school expenditures the probabilities are that the city tax rate for 1913 will be at least $17 per thousand, and it may run even higher. The present rate is $16.40 per thousand.

$7,300 for Harvard Medical School

At the Harvard Medical School Alumni meeting in Cambridge today, it was announced that the association has raised $7,300 to be used for the Medical School, and that plans have been perfected for the dedication of the Brigham Hospital. Three councillors were elected—Dr. Arthur D. Emmons, Jr. of Boston, Dr. Richard G. Wadsworth of Boston and Dr. Roger Kimball of Worcester.

SAY LIGHT IRON CAUSED MAINE FLIER WRECK

GRANITEVILLE, June 19.—Rails so light in weight that they could not possibly bear up under the strain placed upon them caused the wreck of the Bar Harbor express here yesterday, according to those who today made a personal examination into the conditions that led up to the wreck.

This condition is said to have been well known to the railroad officials, who had made preparations to install regulation weight steel rails at that point. The horrible rails lay alongside the track, in fact, rusting away while waiting to be spiked into place when the accident happened. They had been purchased some time ago, but could not be laid because of the so-called retrenchment policy.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 300,000 more than its next highest competitor and 100,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

LAWYER SHOPS $1,500 WORTH IN SEIZED GOWNS

Attorney Arthur M. King returned to New York today, having run over to Boston "to do a little shopping." He found some fine bargains in $200 gowns for $10.50 and $18, and in all spent $1,512.12.

Mr. King declared he bought the goods for himself. While bidding—for it was at the sale of the contents of the "M. Z. Ellison" trunk, whose seizure led to the customs frauds revelations at the ports of Boston—he constantly consulted a young woman, who accompanied him from New York. He made all but about $600 of the purchases.

Attorney King, who is counsel of record for Miss Kate Brennan, the New York dressmaker, who was arrested in consequence of the seizure of the goods on a charge of conspiracy to smuggle them through this port, seemed intent on exhibiting the 100 persons present.

The highest bid was $200, on a lace gown. Mr. King and Edward Edwards of Boston were the bidders. The gown was appraised at more than $300. It was sold to Mr. Edwards for $200, the highest price paid on any article. The total value of the goods was about $4,500 of which $1,500 was customs duties.

The evening gowns were creations of exquisite lace, silk and satin, with panniers and all the latest trimmings. The gowns were draped on models in a room off the auction room.

Reinforce Walls of New Old South

The walls of the New Old South Church at Boylston and Dartmouth streets are being reinforced by several hundred tons of concrete grout forced behind the steel piling forming the outside shell of the wall for the new Boylston street subway where it passes the church. The tower of the church has leaned slightly for several years, but engineers say it is in no danger of falling.

Gas Flame Blew Out; Woman Dies

Mrs. Bridget McAdams, fifty-eight, fell asleep on a couch in the kitchen of her home at No. 3857 Washington street, Forest Hills, and never woke up. The flame of the gas stove blew out and when Thomas J. McAdams returned home two hours later he found his mother dead.

THE LATEST IN BATHING SUITS

Clergyman Plans Big Boxing Bill

NEW YORK, June 19.—The State Athletic Commission is devoting much attention to the plans of Rev. Fr. M. P. Heffernan of Sayville, L. I., who is staging a big boxing bill in the clubhouse adjoining his church on July 4.

Wouldn't you like to take the afternoon off and run down to the beach for a swim?

Sure you would. So would any one else.

But the chances are the boss won't let you off, so here is a picture just to remind you of the sea and the sizzle of the waves on the sand.

There's always something new in bathing suits—and the newest this year is a black and white bathing suit.

It must be black and white—either white with black stripes and spots, or black with white stripes and spots.

Black and white tones run through every pattern designed this season, and the material is apt to be the old standby—mohair.

Will Raise $12,500 For Suffrage Fight

BUDAPEST, June 19.—The International Women Suffrage Alliance at its session adopted a resolution declaring in favor of a policy of general political neutrality, but of militant antagonism toward parties which oppose woman suffrage. It was agreed to raise $12,500 a year to prosecute the movement.

Several donations for the current year were announced. These included $500 from Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, the president of the alliance; $500 from the Duchess of Marlborough, formerly Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt; $500 from Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont and $250 from the Countess Hitler. The various societies represented guaranteed the remainder of the $12,500.

School Prank Holds Up Class Diplomas

Waltham High School seniors may be denied their diplomas as a result of a schoolboy prank. Last week the boys flew their class flag, with a skull and cross-bones below, on the school flagstaff. The halyards became so tangled that the fire department had to be called to get the flags down. Yesterday the boys flew the flags again on the athletic field, and painted their numerals on the class fence.

Principal Willis V. Eaton started an investigation and told Raymond Mills, president of the class, that unless the culprits confessed, all diplomas would be held up.

Governor Will End Session Tomorrow

All rumors that Governor Foss would refuse to prorogue the Legislature this week were dispelled today by an announcement that the Governor and Council will remain at the State House tomorrow from 4 o'clock to such time in the afternoon, or evening as the Legislature may be ready for final adjournment. Then the Governor, with the consent of the Council, will formally bring the legislative session of 1913 to a close.

Sisters, 45 Years Teachers, Resign

After forty-five years of service as teachers at the Bigelow School in South Boston, Amelia and Eliza Coe, sisters, have resigned. Miss Amelia was a teacher in Newton in 1868. When Henry Hardon became headmaster at the Shurtleff School that year he induced her to come to the Bigelow School, March 30, 1868. In September of the same year her sister joined the staff.

Harvard's Oldest Graduate is Dead

Mr. Coolidge had been ill for three weeks at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Walley Dearne, No. 81 Brewster street, Cambridge. He also leaves a son, Ellery Channing Coolidge.

With the death of Mr. Coolidge there are now left three representatives of the class of '38, Harvard. They are: Dr. James Lloyd Wellington of Swansea, '06; the Rev. Edward Augustus Benoit, S. T. D., of Keene, N. H., '05, and Jacob Weld Seaver, who has just passed his ninety-third birthday.

Dr. Coolidge was born November 1, 1817. In 1873 he was chosen head master of St. Mark's School, Southboro, remaining there until 1882.

DIPLOMAS FOR 4,327 GRAMMAR SCHOOL PUPILS

Diplomas will be given to 2,311 girls and 2,016 boys in the grammar schools tomorrow, following the graduation exercises in the fifteen high schools of the city today. Boston School Board statistics show that this year the girl graduates have but a very slight lead in numbers over the boys.

In the Elihu Greenwood School the boy graduates outnumber the girls. The same is true of the Washington School, the John Cheverus School, the Harvard, John A. Andrew, Emerson, Warren, Comins, Washington-Allston, Minot, Dearborn and Jefferson schools. In the U. S. Grant School there are an equal number graduating, forty-six boys and forty-six girls.

The smallest number of boys to graduate from any school is fourteen, from the Blackinton. The smallest number of girls graduating from any school in the compiled list is nineteen in the same school.

Diplomas will be presented by the school committee members, George E. Brock, Michael H. Corcoran, Miss Frances G. Curtis, Joseph Lee and Dr. Thomas F. Leen. Prominent citizens in the different communities have also been asked to make the presentations.

Laura Stallo Sues to Save Her Estate

Wants Letters of Administration to Bank Revoked.

NEW YORK, June 19.—Laura McDonald Stallo, sister of Princess Helena Stallo Morat and granddaughter of the late Alexander McDonald, millionaire railroad builder and oil magnate, has just petitioned the Surrogate's Court to save her estate and that of her sister from further alleged depletion by revoking the letters of administration granted to the Metropolitan Trust Company.

She estimates the estate's losses at $2,578,000. Her father, Edmund K. Stallo, joins in her application.

At the same time the Metropolitan Trust Company filed in the Supreme Court an application for all his transactions of alleged partnership with his father-in-law, McDonald. The trust company replaced Mr. Stallo as administrator.

It appears that the Metropolitan Trust Company had loaned McDonald and Stallo $2,700,000 on a note and had taken as security first mortgage bonds valued at $2,138,000 and common stock valued at $1,950,000 of the New Orleans, Mobile & Chicago Railroad Company, and 2,980 shares of Standard Oil Company stock.

The petition of Laura McDonald Stallo and her father shows they have disagreed with the Metropolitan Trust Company because it has sold, at an alleged loss, the securities guaranteeing the payment of the $2,700,000 note. Miss Stallo declares that the Standard Oil stock was sold at less than $620 a share and that before the expiration of the renewal period of the note these shares reached a value of $1,180.

GIVE DIPLOMAS IN 15 BOSTON HIGH SCHOOLS

Today and tomorrow are graduation days for thousands of Boston school boys and girls. Today the fifteen high schools and the normal school hold their graduation exercises. Tomorrow over seventy other schools will graduate classes.

At the Dorchester High School today, Mayor Fitzgerald will present the diplomas, one of which will go to his son, Thomas A. Fitzgerald.

Among those invited to address graduating classes are Lieutenant-Governor Walsh, the Rev. Abraham M. Rihbany, Mrs. Elinor C. Ripley, Superintendent Franklin B. Dyer, Herbert A. Kenney, John C. Broadbent, the Rev. H. A. Wilmot, Bernard J. Rothwell, Dr. Ralph C. Larrabee and Mayor Fitzgerald.

CASSIDY TELLS OF DECEPTION IN MAKING VINEGAR

Mr Cassidy tells you today how you are being defrauded in vinegar. The old "cider vinegar" of former days is being adulterated to the limit. There's a reasonenormous profits.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

There are adulterations and adulterations of food and drink. But the greatest of these is in vinegar.

Time was when vinegar was made from the farmer's surplus cider. What he didn't use for home consumption he put in a cask with an open bung hole and placed in a warm cellar or in the sun.

After a couple of years of aging the vinegar was ready for market. It used to come to our tables with the fresh aroma of apples and when placed on the good old baked beans on a Saturday night or Sunday morning was a feast fit for kings.

But, alas, the food adulterer has more speed than the farmer. Also more cupidity. He can't wait for nature to make vinegar. He calls in chemistry.

Chemistry has succeeded so well in imitating the real cider vinegar that it is almost impossible to detect by analysis the fraud perpetrated.

The manufacturer who ships it across the State line, to escape the government, labels it spirit vinegar, malt vinegar, glucose vinegar, molasses vinegar and wood vinegar.

Made by Chemists.

That let's the manufacturer out. When it gets into the store up at the corner of the street it is put into the cellar. The woman of the house sends for a quart in a glass bottle or stone jar. "Give me a quart of pure vinegar," is requested of the grocer.

Down he goes to the cellar. He opens the faucet of the glucose vinegar or the spirit vinegar or whatever kind of vinegar he could buy the cheapest. What have you purchased? Vinegar of the old days used to contain the life-giving minerals, magnesium, potassium, sulphur and phosphorous. What you bought was a "cider vinegar," made in two days instead of two years. A little artificial coloring gives the appearance of age. The artificial cider vinegar so freely used is prepared from a spirit vinegar made from diluted alcohol. The chemist who compounded the mixture knows there has to be a fair amount of solids to pass analysis. He takes some refuse apple jelly. To this he adds some commercial glucose and there's the body.

To deceive and cheat you a little more he gives you that old apple aroma we spoke of. Just a little fine acetic ether gives this green goods compound a tempting flavor. And there's your vinegar.

Watch for the Label.

Glucose vinegar is made from allowing commercial glucose to ferment. Molasses vinegar is made from the refuse of the sugar house. Wood vinegar comes from saturating pyroligneus acid with lime or soda. A little sulphuric or hydrochloric acid is added and the mess distilled. It is then redistilled with potassium bichromate and filtered through bone black. Sounds more like the making of a chemical for treating steel than for some article of food going into your stomach, doesn't it?

Why are these things done? Well, it costs the manufacturer about two and one-half cents a gallon to make the adulterated product. He sells it for forty cents a gallon.

Watch for the label! Get the habit of doing this in all things you buy as well as vinegar. If you ask often enough or refuse to take the inferior article the grocer will get the pure article for you. That's what you are paying him for.

Atlantic City Merchants in Court on Evidence by Pure Food Crusader.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 19.—Twenty-six leading merchants of this place were arrested. They were today accused by Special Health Commissioner Warren of violating the pure food law.

Evidence upon which the warrants were obtained was worked up by Harry P. Cassidy, who for the last eight months has conducted a campaign against impure food dealers in Boston at the instance of the BOSTON AMERICAN.

"We've struck the initial blow," said Mr. Warren. "It is only through the courtesy of W. R. Hearst that we got Cassidy's aid."

CALL STRIKE OF 15,000 MINERS IN COAL FIELDS

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 19.—A general strike of the 15,000 miners in the New River coal field, District No. 29, United Mine Workers of America, will be called next week, according to an announcement by Thomas Haggerty, member of the International Miners' Board.

This is a part of the district covered in the United States Senate investigation.

A serious controversy will probably result over Senator Martine's activities here in the mine strike investigation when the committee resumes its sessions in Washington.

The operators' attorneys asked that following the near-fist fight between Senator Martine and witness Quinn Morton, one of the operators, they be allowed to place in the record newspaper articles, one of them including a written statement by Senator Martine, criticising the operators.

The request was made to Senators Swanson and Kenyon, both retired with the operators and persuaded them to postpone any action in this direction until the committee returned to Washington.

Testimony concerning the activities of the miners and their friends, notably "Mother" Jones, was heard at the adjourning session of the committee. One miner testified that "Mother" Jones "swore a good deal for a lady."

C. C. Woods, a miner at Boomer, said that he heard the same speech, and that "Mother" Jones told him that it was necessary she would take a gun and go with them."

Several witnesses testified that "Mother" Jones and other labor agitators, at the beginning of the trouble, urged the miners at union mines in the Kanawha district, near the strike zone, to arm themselves and aid the strikers.

WASTE OIL ON 'BUNKER HILL' GETS ABLAZE

The steamship Bunker Hill of the Boston-New York service of the Eastern Steamship Corporation docked at New York today fifteen minutes late on account of dripping oil igniting in her boiler room soon after she started from Boston yesterday afternoon. Dispatches today from New York said that the fire caused by the burning oil was trivial. Examination of the boiler room today showed that only a little waste was destroyed.

President Calvin Austin said today:

The steamship Bunker Hill left Boston last night on time, presuming that her eight boilers were in use; but it seems tha he burner in one of the boilers went out, causing the oil to drip into the pan under the furnace, and the same was lighted at 5:30, which ignited the oil that had been dripping, causing a volume of smoke.

Before Captain O'Donnel learned the cause of the smoke he turned the steamer around, headed toward Boston, and was delayed about ten minutes, when the smoke diminished, as the oil was consumed, and we proceeded on his way, arriving in New York this morning fifteen minutes late.

No damage was done in any way and no excitement among the passengers.

(Signed) CALVIN AUSTIN,
President.

MRS. MARCONI GOES TO COURT TO SEE HUSBAND

NEW YORK, June 19.—While two members of the British Cabinet, Attorney-General Sir Rufus Isaacs and David Lloyd George, have been forced to answer for their personal honesty before Parliament, in the Marconi shares' investigation, Guglielmo Marconi, the inventor, is himself busy with New York courts in suits against rival companies over patents.

Both of the Cabinet officers have cleared themselves of dishonor, although they admitted on the floor of the house that they had been "careless."

At the hearing before Judge Steeder in Marconi's suit in Brooklyn, to restrain the use of apparatus by a rival company, Mrs. Marconi sat by the inventor's side, as she has done in every previous suit.

Today she said:

It is the only way I would get to see anything of him at all. All these lawsuits put my brain in a perfect whirl. I do not know what to make of them. All I do know is that I am certain my husband is right and—well I hope he wins. We sail next week.

Father Gasson Said Nothing of Eugenics

In connection with the report of the laying of the corner stone of the new Boston College, the Rev. Thomas I. Gasson, S. J., president of the college, was quoted as expressing certain views on the question of eugenics. This was in error. Father Gasson made no reference whatever to this subject, and the AMERICAN gladly publishes this statement in order that the fact may be known. The allusion was contained in the address of another speaker.

NEW ASSURANCE OF NAVAL WORK IN CHARLESTOWN

Employes at the Charlestown Navy Yard wished today that the Bunker Hill celebration had been postponed a week so that they could participate and give vent to their feelings as a result of the further news from Washington that work—and plenty of it—is coming their way.

In addition to assurances from Secretary of the Navy Daniels that the yard must be kept up, Assistant Secretary Roosevelt states in a letter to Congressman Curley that every effort to keep a large force of civilians at work will be made.

Mr. Roosevelt says there will be no diminution in the work until September 1, when there will be a gradual reduction in the force until October 1, when the Georgia will be overhauled and the semi-annual docking of the battleships will take place.

The assistant secretary declares that the employment of enlisted men in certain lines aboard the ships and in the yard is wholly logical as a matter of routine.

Miss Cronan, Niece of Col. Corr, Weds

TAUNTON, June 19.—Society turned out en masse here today at the wedding of Miss Elizabeth A. Cronan, niece of Colonel Peter H. Corr, chairman of the State Panama Exposition Commission, and John Raymond Hafter, a young attorney of New York city, solemnized at St. Mary's Catholic Church, early this morning. The after-wedding reception was an elaborate affair, with a large number of guests and notables in attendance.

$7,000 Blaze on Summer Street

Fire, early today, caused a damage of $7,000 on the three upper floors of the five-story stone building at No. 42 Summer street, occupied by Sullivan Brothers as a tailoring establishment. The same building swept by a four-alarm fire a few months ago.

Harmless Treatment for Beautifying Hands

The new beauty-bath is so simple and wonderfully effective that every woman who cares can now have hands and arms of lily whiteness and skin of downy softness if she will first cleanse and dry them, then bathe them for a few minutes in a quart of warm water to which has been added a scant teaspoonful pulverized oumol. This bath should be used night and morning and allowed to dry on the skin.

This beauty-bath rids the skin of "water marks," tan, freckles, roughness, redness and other blemishes and is really superior to expensive creams or lotions. Any druggist can supply pulverized oumol in original 5-cent packages with full directions. Never buy it in bulk, as its purity and freshness may be affected.

SWIFT ABOUT TO PROSECUTE 3 ICE BARONS

Attorney-General Swift is preparing to prosecute three prominent Massachusetts ice dealers as a result of evidence secured to date in his investigation of the ice situation. This information was obtained today at the State House from an authoritative source.

The Attorney-General refused to make known the names of the dealers or the charge upon which they would be prosecuted, saying:

It is best at this time to keep these matters secret. More good can be accomplished by this investigation if the evidence secured is kept under cover until all evidence obtainable has been gathered.

I expect that the opinions and the reasons given by various dealers for the high price of ice and recent increases in the price will vary. Not being an expert on the ice situation myself, I intend to submit the answers to an expert who will go through them carefully and submit the result of his analysis to me. I shall then proceed to act accordingly.

England Arms Fast Lusitania with Guns

LONDON, June 19.—The fast Cunarder liner Lusitania is being equipped with high-power naval rifles in conformity with England's new policy of arming passenger boats.

When this great ship, the third selected by the government for armament, next appears in New York harbor in August she will be the first British merchantman for more than a century to sail up the lower bay with guns bristling over her sides.

The Lusitania is valuable for her great capacity for carrying of troops.

Mayor Scores the Civil Service Board

Mayor Fitzgerald, in a sharp criticism of the Civil Service Commission for rejecting Thomas O'Callaghan, former merchant, as city purchasing agent, declared his appointee was as capable of filling the office, which pays $3,000, as the late J. Edward Mullen, whose work was entirely satisfactory.

THOUSANDS AT FUNERAL OF FIGHT VICTIM

whose description of the shooting was related in the AMERICAN today, was not a court witness at the application for a warrant. Moriarty's story to the AMERICAN is as follows.

"On the night of the shooting I was sitting in my window. I looked out and happened to see standing at the corner of Warrenton and Eliot streets a man and a girl. A policeman came into sight from Eliot street, then stepped around the corner. He was talking to the girl, and the fellow with the girl was leaning against the lamppost and listening.

"Another man came along—Shea. He came down Warrenton street toward Eliot. He walked as straight as anyone could walk. He certainly was not drunk.

Saw Miller Grab Shea.

"At the corner, Shea spoke to the girl. I couldn't hear what he said, of course—but the policeman grabbed him by the shoulder. Shea pulled back sharply and broke loose, but the officer caught him again and pulled him around the corner. I heard a scuffle—and I heard four blows—or what sounded like blows—a club falling on a man's head.

"Suddenly Shea sprang back into sight and Collins—the man who had been leaning against the post, was with him. They ran up the street, side by side. The officer pursued them. His hat was off, and I could see his bald head shine. There were no outcries. The three of them ran in silence—the officer gaining.

"I expected to see the officer catch them—but suddenly he drew his revolver and fired after the fleeing men. The flash of his gun was just parallel with the ground. I thought he must have hit one of them, but neither stopped.

"Three other men had been singing on the steps. But at the first step, they darted across the street and into the door of No. 105. Collins and Shea saw them and followed. Shea was just behind Collins as they ran into the door, and the officer was so close behind Shea he could have caught him by a quick dive.

"Then he raised his gun and fired again into the dark doorway.

"I raced downstairs and across the street. Another client had run up at the sound of the shots. Miller was standing in front of No. 105. The other officer hit a match and I crowded into the doorway with him and saw Shea, lying on the floor, apparently dead.

Might Have Caught Him.

"He did not have Miller's club in his hand, as Miller said.

"Miller, in my opinion, cannot claim he shot in self defence. Shea was fleeing, and Miller could have captured him without shooting."

Shea's funeral was held at St. James' Church, Harrison avenue, at 9 o'clock. Father Fitzgerald was the celebrant.

Twenty-two carriages were in the procession and there was an open carriage piled high with floral pieces.

The street in front of the Shea home at No. 75 Carver street was impassable because of the crowd. Shea's mother, Mrs. Nora Shea, entered a hack leaning upon the arm of the slain man's brother, John. His two sisters, Eleanor and Florence, followed. The body, in a carved golden oak casket, was placed in the hearse by eight friends of the young man. The names of the bearers were Joseph B. Shea, John Shea, Michael Breen, all cousins of the dead man, and Michael Sullivan, Theodore Livingstone, Lincoln Weitz, Herman Bostun and George Crossman.

Burial Was in Malden.

In spite of the crowds, not a policeman was in sight. The body was interred at Holy Cross Cemetery at Malden.

Thirteen year-old Louise Costello of No. 108 Warrenton street and Mrs. Helen McDonald of No. 113 Warrenton street saw the shooting. The former agrees in the main with the story of Catherine Brennahan, who lives in the same house at No. 108 and whose brother Miller arrested before the death of Shea. The Costello girl's story also accuses Miller.

According to Louise Costello, the Brennahan girl had been insulted by Miller, and later both girls stood in the street overcome by terror and watched the killing of Shea.

"After Miller had fired two shots at Ralph Shea," said the Costello girl, "Shea turned in the doorway of No. 105 Warrenton street. When Miller came to this door he stood just in the frame of the doorway and fired into the hallway before he went in.

"Both Catherine Brennahan and I stood on the other side of the street and saw the whole thing."

Mrs. McDonald declared to a reporter she was returning to her home shortly after 1 o'clock in the morning of June 17, and passed Miller talking with two girls. She had started upstairs to her apartments when she heard the revolver shot.

She looked from the window, but saw nothing, but hardly had she turned, she said, when she heard a second shot. The second was not so distinct. She then looked out again and saw two policemen standing in the street in front of No. 105 Warrenton street.

Patrolman Miller was last night placed on duty at the patrol wagon house as the extra man on the wagon for the next two weeks. Captain Canney announced that the transfer of Miller from his route in "Kerry Village," where the shooting occurred, was not because of that fact. He said he had originally planned to use Miller on the wagon during the vacation of one of the regular men.

With the facts admitted of a fight between young Shea and the patrolman and of Miller being knocked down and losing his club, the chief argument today resolved itself into a question of whether Miller "had to shoot," from a legal use of the phrase.

The condition of young Shea at the time he was fighting Patrolman Miller is a point which causes additional argument.

Mrs. Nora Shea of No. 75 Carver street, mother of the slain youth, says that she never knew her son to use intoxicating liquors.

J. J. Casey of No. 90 Warrenton street, who was with Shea about two hours before the shooting, says: "I did not notice the least sign of liquor on Shea."

Others in the neighborhood have testified to Shea's temperate habits.

But the statement of Medical Examiner Leary, who performed the autopsy on Shea's body, is to the contrary.

Defended by Superiors.

The trouble between Miller and Shea grew out of Miller's previous arrest of Cornelius Brennahan of No. 108 Warrenton street. Brennahan did not see the shooting because he was already locked up at Lagrange street. He says of Miller, however:

"Miller didn't arrest me on my own street, he had to get me away from my friends. Miller gets excited easily and always draws his stick at the beginning of a fight."

Miller's superior officers indorse his reputation as a policeman and defend his action in shooting Shea. Captain Canney describes Miller as a courageous, cool-headed officer.

Superintendent Pierce says that all facts so far indicate that Miller was simply doing his duty. Miller was not on duty last night, as he is withheld pending court action on the request for a warrant.

Patrolman Miller's record is in his favor. He has been on the force nine years and has had one of the hardest routes covered by Lagrange street station. He is married and lives with his wife and boys at Orient Heights.

Three bridal couples who visited Europe on their honeymoon were among the arrivals here today on the Cunard liner Laconia from Queenstown and Liverpool. They are C. C. Nash, who married Miss Long, a Vincent Club girl; Mr. and Mrs. J. Keith Clement and E. J. Casey, who married Miss Mary Whelan of Roxbury.

Andor Garvay, the Hungarian playwright and author, and Madam Garvay, were among the notables aboard the steamer. One of his plays, "Money," translated into English by Feri F. Weiss under the title of the "Prank," is to be produced next year in this country, probably in New York or Boston.

Among the Bostonians were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Amos, F. W. Andrews, F. S. and M. P. Carr, David Sears, Mrs. Charles R. and Miss Evelyn Sturgiss, Charles E. Laurlat, Mrs. G. Herbert Widener and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Abbott and daughter.

The Laconia's passenger list consisted of eighty saloon, 298 cabin, 1452 steerage. She stopped at Portland, Me., yesterday, and there disembarked nine saloon, sixty-five cabin and 162 steerage passengers.

CHILDREN IN HORDES ENJOY BIG WILD WEST

Thousands of boys and girls—and they made racket enough for millions—laughed, shrieked, yelled and applauded as guests of the Boston AMERICAN at the matinee performance today of the Wild West show of "101 Ranch" on the old circus grounds on Huntington avenue.

They came from all over the city, these boys and girls, from institutions and homes, from the crowded tenement district and from some of the bigger parishes.

Some say that boys enjoy a Wild West show more than girls do because it is full of cowboys and "injuns" and shootin' and lots of fierce things.

But the little girls seemed just as fond of all this as the boys, judging by the girlish squeals of delight in staccato "Ohs!" and "Ahs!"

Stimulated by the childish audience—for your cowboy and cowgirl and your educated "injun" as well dearly love a "kiddie"—the 101 Ranch people put on what they said was the "swellest show of the Boston week." They simply outdid themselves in riding, lassoing, lariat-throwing, fancy horsemanship, shooting and other Wild West feats.

The show "went" splendidly. The enthusiasm of the audience mounted to high pitch as one thrilling act succeeded another. But the bill was long enough to suit even the capacity of the Boston small boy.

When the children went in they spent their time before the program began in watching the Indian pappooses and inspecting the arrangements of the Indian tents. Young America, with a critical eye to the best way to put up a tepee and to wear a string of eagle feathers, noted all details. With the coming of vacation it is expected that warwhoops and lariat-throwing, a la 101 Ranch, will be in order.

Eddy Estate Lowers Concord Tax Rate

CONCORD, N. H., June 19.—The 1913 tax rate of $1.53 per $100 is a decrease of twenty-two cents per $100, owing to an increase of $1,000,000 valuation from the property of the late Rev. Mary Baker Eddy.

This property is now in the hands of Josiah E. Fernald, administrator of her estate. During the life of Henry M. Baker, the executor named in Mrs. Eddy's will, this property paid taxes in Bow, an adjoining town.

The Biggest Motor Truck Order Ever Placed

80 Alcos for the U. S. Mail—A $225,000 Sale

THE Postal Transfer Service, Inc. has just placed the largest order for motor trucks on record—an order for 80 Alco trucks to haul U. S. mail—a sale approximating $225,000.

This marks the greatest tribute ever paid to any motor truck. For the contract was awarded to the Alco over leading makes of motor trucks, gasoline and electric, after exacting tests by Government inspectors.

Consider for a moment these facts:

These 80 Alco trucks in a year will be required to cover 1,000,000 miles; to haul 1,550,000 tons—157,680,000 cubic feet—of United States postal matter. End against end, this fleet of 80 Alco trucks extends 1810 feet—a quarter of a mile.

Great are the proportions of these figures. But more important is the nature of the service. It is day in and day out, running on railroad schedule, making trains, operating nights as well as days—24 hours a day at times—over all sorts of roads, in the sizzling heat of summer, in the winter blizzards—and always the necessity of clocklike regularity.

None but a superior truck could qualify for tasks such as these.

The Alco truck is no experiment in this type of service—it has been proven in the service of express companies. The American Express Company has 36, the Long Island Express 20 and so on.

And no type of duty is more severe than express service. Further, it is only natural that the verdict should fall to a product of the American Locomotive Company. 51,000 of its locomotives have hauled you, your families, the things you eat and things you wear—safely and on time; in high altitudes; in low altitudes; and in many latitudes.

This is going to be a hot summer. It will cause many millions of dollars loss in horse flesh. Better anticipate by looking into Alco trucks for your business.

Phone us today and an expert will call on you.

HARVARD GIVES DEGREES TO 1031; ORATOR DEFENDS SOCIALISTS AT EXERCISES

Sixteen honorary and 1015 ordinary and special degrees were conferred by Harvard University at the annual Commencement Day exercises today in Sanders Theatre.

The Commencement address, said in part by J. White, Jr., was on "Harvard's Radicals." It was a defence of the collegiate Socialists, whom he humorously alluded to as the "black sheep of her (Harvard's) family."

Confining his remarks to the Harvard Socialist Club, Mr. White said in part:

To what purpose is all their work, all their expenditure of brains and talent? First, they are accomplishing what radicals have accomplished since Socrates pronounced himself the gadfly of Athens; they are waging war against indifference to social problems. Whatever else may be said of them, the fact remains that they are continually reminding their less interested fellows of the need of a world of men.

Endeavor to Be True.

Second, they are endeavoring in every way to be true to their principles. Of course, they have no monopoly on this characteristic. Yet this it is that makes them the most conspicuous anomaly, apparently the most unaccountable contradiction in terms ever foisted upon a university, in the broad-and-liberal world without the college walls, we can bring ourselves to see where the radicals get their idea that private ownership of public property is all wrong. The empty stomach, as we all know, is responsible for the very existence of the radicals.

For at bottom, it is the radical, not the conservative undergraduate, who is doing most to free Harvard from the opprobrious epithet, "Rich Man's College." It is the radical, not the conservative, who is showing the workingmen that Harvard contains men in sympathy with their movement. Last September, when the Socialist Club marched behind its banner to the Debs rally at the Arena, the ovation it received from the thousands of men and women gathered there meant something for Harvard.

This is said with no intent to minimize the importance of the social service in which 350-odd undergraduates are engaged. But the work of conducting boys' clubs, teaching night school, and so on, valuable as it is as an opportunity for direct and immediate service, often passes unheeded by the sullen, radical type of workingmen. Usually most troublesome malcontents owe it askance as a capitalist palliative. Thus among the really "dangerous" element of the working class, the efforts of the more conservative social workers are often handicapped by the fact that they do not represent the one movement these men will pay attention to.

Notables as Aids.

The commencement procession formed at 10:15 in the yard in front of Massachusetts Hall, in the time-honored order. The twenty aids included former Ambassador Lars Anderson, Charles F. Choate and other men of note. Charles Francis Adams, 2d, was chief marshal. There were forty-five marshals.

The line included the president of the Alumni Association, President Lowell and President Emeritus Eliot, the fellows of the corporation, Governor Foss and staff and Lieutenant Governor Walsh, escorted by the Lancers, Sheriff Fairbairn of Middlesex and Sheriff Quinn of Suffolk and the board of overseers of the college.

Then came men who were to receive honorary degrees, other invited guests and finally the long, gowned line of the candidates for ordinary degrees and the other undergraduates.

The procession moved to Memorial Hall building and filed into Sanders Theatre which was filled to the last inch of space.

Everyone was grateful for the cool temperature.

Oration in Latin.

The Latin oration was by George Hussey Gifford of Boston. In the sonorous classic tongue he dwelt upon the increase of Harvard's glory, of the new Freshman dormitories "Insta Coronum flurium, athletic victories and similar collegiate assets.

The baccalaureate poem and the commencement disquisition were both delivered by Daniel Sargent of Wellesley. As Mr. Sargent was also his class poet his share in graduation exercises was large for one man.

The baccalaureate hymn was a fervent tribute to The Creator in three stanzas.

The disquisition of Mr. Sargent was entitled "Changing Values." He said in part:

This religion of science which is now triumphant must, like all other religions, have its day and then its night. It has won a right to its own truths and that victory doomed it, for it has startled us out of a bad dream. We dreamed that scientific truth was somehow an image of some external reality, and that poetry was a beautiful illusion, but we suddenly awoke to find that scientific truth, while as indispensable as any other machine, is but a creation of our own minds, made for our own convenience.

Lowell Bestows Honors.

Then President Lowell bestowed the honorary degrees and the "Benedictus" and music brought the formal Commencement Day exercises to a close.

One of the interesting events of the day was the balloting for overseers of the college. The polls were open from 10 to 4. Five overseers were to be elected for six-year terms and one for four years. Among the candidates was Speaker Grafton D. Cushing of the House, '85.

At noon a buffet luncheon was served in the faculty rooms at University Hall.

Annual meetings of various college bodies and reunions of "Old Grads" were in order throughout the afternoon.

BOILERMAKERS EXPECT 12,000 TO JOIN STRIKE

Definite plans for a State-wide strike of all metal tradesmen, employed in shops where the boilermakers are denied a settlement, were formulated at a secret conference of labor leaders in the Quincy House today. Some 1,500 boilermakers are now out, and the plans made today are expected to pull out at least 12,000 additional workmen.

Thomas J. Dowd, international vice-president of the Boiler Makers' Union, and John M. Tobin, international vice-president of the Blacksmiths' Union, headed the delegation of labor leaders, but the utmost secrecy was maintained as to the exact time the general strike order would issue. It was later admitted, however, that at least four large plants in this district are to "strike" tomorrow, and that the strike might spread throughout the State before another week.

The boilermakers struck almost three weeks ago. Their demands call for a standardised wage of $3.50 for journeymen, $2.75 for helpers, on a nine-hour basis. Of the 1,500 out, 850 formerly were employed in Greater Boston. Previous to their strike order by the 30 act standard of wages, some of the outside shops paying helpers 90 cents a day, with correspondingly low rate to journeymen.

John W. Keenan, district organizer of the Boilermakers' Union, asserted that the general strike plans mapped out today resulted from an attempt of the association employers to break up the union by the use of spies and private detectives.

He further declared that the strikers had found an almost unanimous sentiment among the other metal trades unions to support the striking boilermakers.

Gigantic Demonstration Planned When Congress Takes Up Report

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The biggest gathering of women vote-seekers ever gathered will be seen in Washington on July 30 when the affirmative report of the Senate Committee on Women Suffrage will come in the upper branch of Congress for action.

Miss Alice Paul, who is making preparations here for the coming of the suffrage pilgrims, estimated today that there will be more than 50,000 out of town women here.

Some will "hike" to Washington, others will come by automobile, while most will stick to the railroad. One party will come from New York, another from Boston, another from Philadelphia. Parties will come from as far west and south as Montana and Texas.

Each woman will be dressed in her prettiest frock and will wear flowers.

SURVIVORS TELL HOW 6 DIED ON RAMMED BOAT

Survivors today told dramatic stories of the ramming down and sinking of the Gloucester fisherman Olympia, the drowning of Captain Doggett and one of his crew, and the rescue of eight others who were saved by clutching at the sides of the Warren liner Sagamore which rammed the vessel off Sable Island.

The Olympia left Gloucester about 3 o'clock ago for a bollock trip with a crew of fourteen men. The lost were Captain Doggett, his son, John Loring Doggett of Portland, William Sullivan of Eastport, Me., Ralney Doucett of Gloucester and Nova Scotia, Frank Banner of Eastport, Me., and Fred Train of Portland.

The saved are: John A. Young of East Boston, Frank Costa of East Boston, James R. Larkin of Gloucester and Nova Scotia, Frank Leslie Doggett of Portland, another son of the captain, Frank B. Dyer of Portland, Arthur Bennett of Eastport, Me., Michael Flaherty of Gloucester and Newfoundland, and Stephen Verge of Gloucester.

Four men were on watch on the Olympia when the Sagamore loomed up out of the fog, bearing down upon the fishermen. Three of them rushed below to wake the other members of the crew.

Verge's Story.

Sullivan, one of those on watch, remained too long below. He was the only one of those who were on watch who was drowned.

Verge, who first sighted the steamer, said:

The fog was very thick. I was on deck on watch when all of a sudden I saw the lights of a big steamer coming right toward us.

There was a rush for the rigging. With the seven others who were saved I climbed into the forerigging, and from there we jumped onto the deck of the steamer, which we later learned was the Sagamore.

Frank Doggett, the skipper's son, had been endeavoring to assist his father and brother into the rigging. There was only a minute or two to live or drown, so no one had much chance to help the other fellows up.

Heard Liner's Horn.

Dyer, another of the crew on watch, said:

I was nearest to the companionway, and I rushed down to the men asleep to tumble up. As I yelled the bow of the Sagamore struck the Olympia just abreast of the mainmast, and punched a big hole in her.

I yelled to the others to take the foremast rigging, for I could judge by the Sagamore's lights that from the rigging we could probably spring to the deck of the steamer.

Eight of us made it all right, but the Olympia went down under the feet of the other six.

Captain Alexander Fenton of the Sagamore, said:

It was very thick and the sailing vessel could not be seen until it was too late. We made every effort to pick up the men, but they could not be found by the time a boat was lowered.

Strozzi and Bride Sail.

PROVIDENCE, June 19.—The Marchese Massimiliano Strozzi and the Marchesa Strozzi, who was Miss Linda Angell Arnold of this city, sailed today from New York to spend the Summer in Italy. They were married at St. Joseph's Church.

Boston Yacht Club Power Squadron Gets Navy Praise

With the success of the "power squadron," organized by the Boston Yacht Club, the Navy Department believes that a very valuable adjunct to the defensive system of the country may be built up.

The department will endeavor to have other clubs adopt the Boston scheme of a secondary auxiliary for defensive warfare, following the report of Commodore Roger Upton, on the success of the Boston project.

27,000 Men Locked Out in Boycott

Chicago Builders St. Work in War on Trades Council.

CHICAGO, June 19.—Twenty-seven thousand and seven hundred men were locked out on uncompleted buildings in Chicago in the boycott against the Building Trades Council instituted today by the Building Construction Employers' Association. Work on buildings costing $29,000,000 was stopped when contracts on all buildings in the course of construction were notified that the lockout exists. The lockout is the result of the failure to settle the strike of 150 stone masons on the new Continental and Commercial Bank building.

Free I. W. W. Leaders in Riot Death Case

Pingrees and Herrmann Are Still Charged with Inciting Trouble.

IPSWICH, June 19.—Mr. and Mrs. Carroll L. Pingree and Nathaniel Herrmann, the I. W. W. leaders who were arrested on the charge of complicity in the murder of Nicholis Pandelopulos in the Ipswich strike riot last week, were released today, this charge against them being dismissed. Each, however, was held in $1,200 on the charge of inciting to riot. Bonds were furnished for all three.

Haywood May Lead Hopedale Strikers

MILFORD, June 19.—William D. Haywood's arrival Monday is eagerly awaited by the Hopedale Mills strikers, for it is believed he will take active charge of their affairs. No place has been selected for Friday night's speeches by Elizabeth Gurley Flynn and Carlo Tresca since the Town Hall was refused them.

Delays Ruling on I. W. W. Strike Fund

Judge Ready to Report Alleged Misappropriations to Full Bench.

Judge Braley of the Supreme Court stated today that he would make a final decree later or would report to the full bench of the Supreme Court if desired, on the petition of Attorney-General Swift, who seeks to place the responsibility for the spending of $10,650.42 of the I. W. W. Lawrence strike fund.

This petition charges that certain I. W. W. officials misappropriated a part of the fund. On the petition of certain contributors to the general fund who asked for an accounting, the matter was sent to a master, who made a report to Judge Braley.

The trustees of the strike fund claim that the amount received for the benefit of the strikers was for school purposes.

The master in his report charged that the $10,650.42 was not accounted for.

Mayor Fitzgerald has promised a committee of the Milk and Baby Hygiene Association, which called on him, to get the city to help in reducing the death rate on babies, that he would recommend to the City Council appropriations for eight more nurses, to work under the direction of Dr. William J. CAPTAIN PAUL WIEHR, commander of the Hamburg-American liner Bluecher, second steamship to dock at new Commonwealth Pier.

LINER BLUECHER LANDS 1,132 AT BIG STATE PIER

The Hamburg-American passenger liner Bluecher docked at 7 a. m. today at the line's new Boston terminal, the rebuilt Commonwealth Pier. This is the second arrival of a passenger liner here on the Hamburg American line's new Boston service.

It is the first time that the Bluecher was ever in Boston harbor and, so far as present arrangements go, it will be the last time because the Bluecher was substituted at short notice for the Cleveland.

The Cleveland, sister ship to the Cincinnati, was to sail from Hamburg June 8, for Boston, but the Cleveland was obliged to take the New York run of the gigantic liners which had been delayed in completion. Rather than upset the Boston schedule, the Hamburg-American directorate took the Bluecher from the South American service in order to keep the Boston service intact.

Captain Paul Wiehr said today that the Bluecher had been sold out both ways for the Buenos Ayres run and that the shifting of the boat to Boston brought loud howls from the Argentine commercial bureau in Paris.

Cleveland Here Next Time.

On the next sailing, the Cleveland is scheduled to take the run and the Bluecher will resume her Hamburg-Buenos Ayres runs.

Captain Wiehr said he was glad the run was to Boston instead of New York, because the Manhattan-ites' only experiences made him up eight years ago as perishing in a wreck which he was supposed to be in charge of but wasn't. The New Yorkers and esteemed him dead ever since.

George S. Smith, former president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, returned today with Mrs. Smith on the Bluecher after a four months' stay in Europe, mostly in Italy and Germany, firmly convinced that New Englanders should sail from and to the port of Boston.

He said: "The service aboard the Bluecher is unsurpassed and one has every comfort possible on any steamer. The administration of German officers is incomparable. The solicitude for the poor is almost extravagant."

The Bluecher is a 13,000 ton ship, against the 10,000 tons of the Cincinnati. The slightly smaller steamer is compensated in the extreme elegance of her appointments.

She brought 52 saloon, 42 second cabin, 61 third class and 927 steerage passengers, a total of 1,132 passengers. Sailing from Hamburg June 8, and touching at Boulogne and Southampton, the Bluecher met headwinds, fog and two real gales, so she arrived here a little late.

Chief Saloon Passengers.

Among the saloon passengers were:

Rear Admiral F. E. Chadwick, U. S. N., retired, and Mrs. Chadwick, Mrs. Annie B. C. Fitch of Newton and Miss Dorothy Fitch, Mrs. Lucy Emery and Miss Emery to Hammond chain of hostelries, who has been at Bad Nauheim; Mrs. J. Arthur Logan, sister-in-law of James Logan, the late minister to Turkey, and Miss Agnes Neill, Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Phillips of Newton, Mrs. Theodore Proskie and Misses Elvira and Lenia Proskie of Brookline, Mr. and Mrs. John Ward and Miss Alice Ward of Lynchild, Mr. and Mrs. Adam de Cordes of Gardner.

Mr. Cordova, who is in the glass business in this country, is a hereditary Duke of Spain and ranks as a Count in Italy, but, he says himself is "poor Mister" in the United States.

Captain Wiehr of the Bluecher brought warm praise for the iceberg warning flashed to him from the United States scout cruiser Chester.

The Chester is patrolling the North Atlantic steamship lane.

KIEL, Ger., June 19.—The special elimination trials scheduled to start yesterday for the selection of the three German contestants to participate in the German-American sonderklasse regatta off Marblehead, Mass., next September, were abandoned, owing to the small number of entries.

Right Off the Bat

By RILEY.

A NEW hero adorns the firmament this morning. His name is Ayres. In the fourth inning at Soldiers' Field, yesterday afternoon, with the score 2 to 1 in favor of Yale, Ayres delivered the hit that scored Wingate with the tying run. In the ninth, with the score, Yale 3, Harvard 2, Ayres tripled and tied the game again when Gannet singled.

* * *

IN the limelight also sits Clark. He tripled in the first inning and, scoring on a Yale error, gave Harvard its first tally of this bitterly-fought series. Also, there's Wingate. It was he who scored that tying run in the fourth. And Gannut, who drove in Ayres with the other tying tally and whose safe drive in the fourteenth put him in position to score the winning run. And, last but not least, "Tackle" Hardwick, the football hero, who pushed Gannet across the plate with the decisive tally. To say nothing of Sam Felton, whose weird pitching puzzled Yale into a defeat at baseball just as his freak kicking booted Harvard into a victory on the gridiron.

* * *

FIFTY years from now there'll still be heroes over in Cambridge. About that time who will remember that famous two bagger of Olaf Henriksen's and that boggle of Mr. Snodgrass!

* * *

SO next Saturday afternoon they'll all carry their baggage over to Charley Ebbett's new stadium in Brooklyn and play the 17 pending day's fourteen-inning affair was a little. Saturday's will be a wild massacre with both sides taking a hand at the massacring.

* * *

WE must also admit that George Stallings is still giving us some baseball. He put it over on the Pirates again yesterday, 2 to 1, scoring for the Boston Nationals seven victories in the last eight games on the road. Which gives Stallings a record on the Western trip of ten victories and seven defeats with this afternoon's game the last one to play. There will be a riot when they come home and tackle the Phillies at South End Park Saturday.

JOHNNY McGRAW was another game nearer Philadelphia this morning than he was yesterday. The Cubs shut out the Quakers while the Giants were pickling the Reds. Before this afternoon's festivities, New York was only a game and a half behind the leaders. Stallings may be the man to topple Doolin out of first place. The Phillies will be here for a series just about the time that business is liveliest at the top of the heap.

* * *

McGRAW is reported to have paid $10,000 for another "Rube"—the one named Schauer—who is pitching his first year for the Superior Club of the Northern League. According to the "dope" from Superior, Schauer is to report to the Giants on August 15, about which time there ought to be plenty of work for him in the National League.

* * *

THE Pilgrims were only three and a half games removed from the first division this morning, that being the difference between them and Brooklyn.

* * *

WE are under considerable obligation to Mr. Walsh for giving Mr. Mack his thirteenth defeat, and we sincerely trust that the number thirteen will be so unlucky as not to remain in the American League standing more than twenty-four hours.

* * *

SOMEHOW there is good news for Boston whichever way these White Sox-Athletics games turn out. If the Athletics win, it puts us so much nearer fourth place; if the White Sox triumph we climb that much towards first place. Before this afternoon's contests, the Red Sox were only one full game behind Chicago and for first division. And the same distance behind Washington and third place.

* * *

HUGHEY JENNINGS has fired at Jake Stahl in succession House, Dunn and Cicuss, which triumvirate of pitchers sounds remarkably like a bottling factory.

* * *

THE office boy informs us that the Yankees beat the Browns yesterday. Well, boy, what of it?

Harvard Man Wins.

NEW YORK, June 18.—F. C. Inman, W. M. Washburn (the young Harvard expert) and C. F. Watson, jr., of Orange won their games in the second round of the Metropolitan championship tennis singles here at the West Side Club.

Mitchell Is Winner.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., June 19.—Terry Mitchell of New York shaded Andy Cortes of Susquehanna in a fiercely fought ten-round bout at the Nonpareil A. C. here. Both contestants were strong at the finish.

HARVARD HOPES TO DEFEAT ELI IN THIRD GAME

After downing the Elis in one of the hardest fought games ever played in college ranks, the Crimson diamond stars are very confident that they can take the third and deciding game to settle the championship, when the two nines clash at Ebbetts Park, Brooklyn, Saturday. Sam Felton, who pitched wonderful ball yesterday, will, it is figured, be prime to go through another session by that time. Some think, he shut out the Cambridge contingent Tuesday, will take up the hurling for the Elis.

Both these heavers are far above the ordinary college twirler, the Yale man being perhaps a little steadier, but Felton having an uncanny knack of pulling himself out of bad holes. Yesterday he passed eleven men, uncorked a wild pitch and winged a batter, yet, despite it, was able to keep all but three Elis from the platter, and one of these would never have reached home but for loose work in the backstopping department.

Brown Pitched Good Game.

Brown, who did the hurling for a little more than eleven innings for the losers, was as steady as a clock, not giving one pass. He was unfortunate in that several of the hits made off him got by his outfield and went for triples.

The crowd that attended the game was the usual brilliant Harvard graduation gathering. In the assemblage of 10,000 there were at least as many women as men. The parades of the various classes of graduates before the contest were even more of a feature than in former years, the marchers going in for costuming to a greater degree than ever before.

There were plenty of bands to dispel the gloom and each particular gathering of smallclass did its utmost to outblow and outlast its rivals.

In the early innings the game was dull and listless, Felton's curious mixing it look as though it would be another Yale walkover. After Sam had pulled out of several bad holes, the crowd began to sit up and howl. In the sixth, when the score was tied, there was plenty of excitement for everybody, and the Yale part of the gathering went mad when the Blue team put a run across in the seventh and took the lead.

With Brown as tight as a new shoe, the Crimson chances were very poor, but a triple and a single quickly changed the complexion of affairs in the ninth and the game went five extra innings, before "Tacks" Hardwick bumped a stout hearted wallop and chased over the winning run. The blow would have been good for a homer had the occasion called for it.

Many Thrilling Plays.

The feature of the Yale rout of the game outside the heaving of Brown was the fast second base play of Cornish, and the brilliant fielding of Middlebrook, who, after messing up Clark's triple in the opener and letting the runner score, spent the rest of the afternoon pulling down the line drives that looked like hits.

Yale was immensely superior on the paths, the rushers stealing at will on Young, whose arm was off, and who was decidedly slow getting his throws away.

After the game was tied up, both teams got to their knitting in approved big league style, and until the successful Crimson smashes, there was not any kind of a slipup that threatened to be fatal.

Big Crowd Will See Final.

It is probable that one of the biggest crowds that ever left this section for a deciding game between these two colleges will take the journey over to Brooklyn Saturday for the big meeting, which, unless all signs fail, will be the banner game of the college season. With the winning rests the college championship of the season, for the Elis have travelled roughshod over all opponents in their season, and, while Harvard has not been quite so fast, nevertheless a win from Yale will leave her with the leadership unquestioned.

It is probable that the Crimson squad will leave tonight for New York, where they will have a chance to get in a day's rest, as well as some practice for the settling clash.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

IT WILL not be known until tonight how long Heinie Wagner will be out of the game. He is suffering with blood poisoning. Two or three weeks ago he split three fingers of his right hand. He kept on playing, but every day the wounds broke open afresh, owing to the fact that he was constantly handling grounders and thrown balls. A gamer ball player than the captain of the Red Sox never stepped on a diamond. He wouldn't quit until blood poisoning set in and his hand had to be lanced. For forty-eight hours before this was done Wagner suffered great pain. He played in the morning and afternoon games against Detroit on Tuesday without having slept a wink the night before. Finally at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, Leonard, who lives with Wagner and Carrigan at "Pud's," went for Dr. Cliff, the club's physician, and he opened the wound, after which Wagner got some relief.

WAGNER'S absence from the Red Sox lineup comes at a particularly unfortunate time, for the team is scheduled to play five games against the Athletics in Philadelphia beginning tomorrow. It is a series the Red Sox want to win badly. If they can put a crimp in the Mackmen it will do a lot to keep the Boston team going at top speed, while at the same time it will have a bad effect on the leaders in the American League race.

HAROLD JANVRIN played shortstop in Wagner's place yesterday, and he had the misfortune to make a wild throw which let in two runs and was indirectly responsible for two more. This put the Tigers ahead for the moment. Fortunately the Red Sox were able to win out, thanks to some good batting and a boot or two by the Tiger players.

JANVRIN'S display came in the first of the fifth inning. There were two out and the bases full at the time. Veach rapped a hard grounder which Janvrin made a swell stop of. Crawford was on first at the time and dashed for second on the hit. It was necessary for Janvrin to work fast if he would get them at second for a force out. As soon as he got his hands on the ball, he scooped it toward second where Yerkes stood waiting for it. However, the ball didn't come within five feet of Yerkes but rolled in right field. Before it could be recovered, Willett and Vitt had scored, Crawford was on third and Veach on second. Baumer came through with a double, scoring both runners, making a total of four tallies that would not have counted if Janvrin had tossed the ball straight to Yerkes.

THE filling of the bases in that inning was the result of a piece of strategy on the part of Collins and Carrigan. The inning opened with a single by Willett. Bush put out on a foul to Carrigan, but Vitt poked a double to right—a lucky hit as he went after a bad ball and it hit the end of his bat. That put men on second and third and brought Crawford up. The strategy consisted of figuring Crawford a more dangerous man in a pinch than Cobb. Crawford was purposely passed, filling the bases. This left a slow runner on third and a slow runner on first. The "dope" proved to be correct for Cobb could do no better than pop a fout to Engle, making two out. The play on Veach should have been the third out, and would have been if Janvrin hadn't fooled as before related.

COBB had Carrigan's goat every time he came to the bat, except in the fifth, in the very first inning. Ty had down a bunt in front of the plate and beat it out. The ball took a peculiar bound or Carrigan would probably have got him at first. At any rate Cobb was full of glee when he reached first safely and gave Bill the laugh. The next time Cobb came to bat Bill took no chances but was up on the ball whenever Ty gave the slightest indication that he might bunt it. Bill made Ty look small, however, in the fifth when he ordered Crawford passed so that he might allow Cobb to bat with the bases full. And Bill had the last laugh, too.

JENNINGS used fifteen men in his efforts to beat the Sox. He was game to the end and even with two strikes on the last man in the ninth inning he was yelling for the batter to hit it out.

THE Tigers got into an argument with Umpire Egan over their charge that Eddie Collins was using licorice on the ball. Speaker came on from centre field to take a hand in the talk-fest. Egan's decision was in favor of the Sox.

BUSH, as usual, was real peeved when he fanned in the ninth. He threw his bat down and went at once to the dressing room, without waiting to see if the next man got on or made the third out. Owsle is a hard working player.

LARRY GARDNER batted for 1.000 on the day. He drew a pass in the first, singled in the fourth, tripled in the fifth and walked in the seventh. Larry got another rap on his sore knee in sliding to third on his three-cagger.

COBB seems to be worth all the money the Detroit club pays him. There are few, if any, in his class.

SPEAKER continues to hit 'em hard. A double and a triple in three times at bat fattened his average yesterday.

Coster Knocked Out.

NEW YORK, June 19.—Kid Julian of Syracuse knocked out Joe Coster of Brooklyn with a right-hand hook to the jaw in the third session of a scheduled ten-round bout at the St. Nicholas A. C.

Yale Freshmen Four Races Harvard Crew

First Struggle in Big Regatta on the Thames Will Be Staged Today

RED TOP, Ct., June 19.—The Harvard crews practically finished their training last night, and are all ready for the starting gun today, when the regatta opens with the freshman four over the upper end of the course from the mile and a half flag to the half-mile mark, nearly opposite the freshman quarters.

Coach Wray is confident that he will start with a win on this race, and it acts as a tonic for the crews in the big races to follow tomorrow.

The following is the line-up of the freshman four: Lund, stroke; J. W. Middendorf, No. 3; H. S. Middendorf, No. 2; Whitmarsh, bow; Enright, cox.

Yesterday afternoon's work was remarkably light, consisting of less than an hour's practice, going through racing starts and short stretches, Coach Wray watching the men from his single, and correcting it few minor details.

In the morning the practice consisted of only light work. Referee Meiklejohn came up from New London and went out in the launch "The Pup." He was accompanied by F. V. Chapelle, chairman of the regatta committee, and Coach "Jim" Wray. Mr. Meiklejohn gave the crews a few racing starts, starting them off with a pistol shot, and also gave them instructions regarding the race, after which he went up to the Yale quarters in the launch John Harvard, and gave the Yale crew the same instructions and racing starts.

The Harvard crews are all in excellent health, and all are confident of victory. After lunch the crews went over to the telegraph office, where they listened to reports of the Harvard and Yale game at Soldiers' Field, and there was loud cheering when the Crimson team won.

In the evening a huge bonfire was started and songs were sung on the boat just opposite the freshman quarters.

There was keep disappointment here when Yale quarters notified Captain Abeles that the prospect for a gentleman's graduate race today was in doubt. Yale claiming they could not raise enough veteran oarsmen to fill the boat, so this most important race to the grads will be called off.

Immediately after the freshman four race tonight the second varsity crew will race Yale for a mile up-stream over the last mile, the boat being made up as follows: Busk, stroke; Mills, No. 3; Curtis, No. 2; Carver, bow; Gallelier, cox.

Captain Abeles went up to Yale quarters last night to complete the final arrangements for the regatta. They are to meet today to choose courses, this being done by the toss of a coin.

COLLEGE CREWS PREPARED FOR HUDSON RACES

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 19.—Indications today were that the regatta on Saturday, in which six universities will compete, will be one of the closest and most bitterly contested in the history of the meets.

Cornell was looked upon as a sure winner a few weeks ago. Then Columbia performed some wonderful sculling stunts that made its crew loom up as a worthy rival. The trial spins of the Washington crew awakened the dopsters to the fact that the Seattle aggregation would be a strong contender.

To top it all off, the Syracuse, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin, the other three entries, tore off some time trials yesterday they were mighty close to the record and the great performances of these supposedly "weak sisters," has upset all calculations and made it a wellnigh impossible task for anyone to dope out the results of the four-mile clash.

Backers of Columbia and Cornell who were eager a week or so ago to wager the r money on their pets against the field are no longer in evidence, and there have been but few bets registered in the last few days. Those who are backing Columbia or Cornell against the field are coaxed into it only by long odds.

The crews today were reported to be in excellent condition and ready for the gruelling four-mile grind along the Hudson. Today and tomorrow the training schedule calls for only light workouts.

The regatta stewards have ruled that unless weather conditions are perfect to the oarsmen the race will not be rowed on schedule. If the heat of the middle of the afternoon is as terrific as it was last year, the stewards have ruled that the races will be delayed until the cool of the evening. If the water is rough they wait until its gets smooth before sending the men out.

This ruling establishes a precedent, as in other years the crew have been sent into action promptly on schedule time despite the heat or roughness of the water.

Collins and Wiley in Race at Revere

Elmer Collins, the speedy Lynn pace follower, who is just beginning to display some of the form behind the engines that made him the most feared of all riders a few seasons back, will have a chance to regain some of his lost laurels at the Revere cycle track next Saturday night when he goes against George Wiley, the present king of motor pace followers.

Collins and Wiley will meet in a 20-mile match and if the speed shown by both men in training is any criterion of their real ability the new track by the sea is very apt to be the scene of a record-breaking race.

Collins, although a great local favorite, will not have many more friends than the diminutive Wiley, who has become popular with Boston followers of the motor paced game.

In addition to the paced race the management have secured Al Goulette and Jackie Clark, the Australian sprinters, for a match race.

Clarke Gets Draw.

NEW ORLEANS, June 19.—Jeff Clark of Joplin, Mo., and Harry Willis of New Orleans, negro heavyweights, fought ten rounds to a draw here.

HOT LINERS

Big Ed Walsh aided and abetted by his salivary glands yesterday accomplished one of the near miracles of baseball when he stopped the Mackmen in their flight and enabled the White Sox to grab a 9 to 5 victory.

* * *

Fans in New York have gone wild over the showing of the Giants in the last week, and the fact that four straight defeats handed to the Phillies has narrowed the gap between the two teams to thirty-three points has made the New Yorkers hopeful that their team will be roosting in first place within a very few days.

* * *

"And once they get there" the Giant fan will tell you "it's all over but that making arrangements for the world series." The Giants have hit their stride at last, which means that there's no team in the old league that keeps up the pace they'll set.

* * *

Ford was invincible in pinches yesterday with the result that the Yankees won from the Browns in easy fashion.

* * *

Johnson, the Indian of the Reds, who made such a fine showing in the early part of the season, lately has been getting his in larger quantities.

* * *

Temperamental Tilly Snafer, who is playing third for the Giants, made a double and two singles yesterday, which added to the nine other hits made by the Giants enabled them to win a 7 to 2 victory over the Reds.

* * *

An odd happening the National League has been in the last three days, the same four teams have defeated the same four opponents. The Giants have taken three straight from the Reds, the Dodgers three from the Cardinals, the Pilgrims three from the Pirates and the Cubs three from the Phillies.

* * *

The Dodgers got a little more batting and base-running practice in St. Louis yesterday, having an easy time defeating the Cardinals by an 18 to 1 score.

* * *

The Naps, accompanied by their bulldog mascot, called on President Wilson at the White House yesterday. He shook their hands and wished them "much luck."

* * *

J. Collins, the right fielder of the White Sox, "blew" himself to a brace of singles, a double and a triple yesterday at the expense of Bender and Wyckoff, the Athletics twirlers.

* * *

Doc Johnson, the lead off man for the Naps made it impossible yesterday for Walter Johnson to equal one record which he made last year when he permitted only two home runs off his delivery. Two four base swats has already been made off Walter this season. Doc stepped to the bat in the first inning and hit one of Walter's first offerings over the fence.

* * *

The prediction that the Phillies would crack on the road seems to have come true. Humphreys of the Cubs shut them out yesterday, it being their fourth straight defeat, and allowed them only three hits.

Cubs to War on the Baseball Gamblers

CHICAGO, June 19.—In an effort to stamp out betting on baseball games, President Murphy of the Cubs has announced that hereafter where possible of identification bettors will be barred from the West Side grounds.

Most of the betting takes place in the boxes and a number of chronic offenders are known personally to Murphy.

WHITTEMORE IN LINKS BATTLE WITH WILDER

One of the best matches in the first round of the State amateur golf championship came out at Wollaston this morning between H. H. Wilder and P. W. Whittemore, two Country Club members. It was unfortunate that these chimates should come together thus early in the tourney, for both were favorites to get through the preliminary rounds.

The largest gallery followed this pair this morning, and Francis Ouimet, P. Gilbert and J. G. Anderson, other leading candidates for first honors, each had one following.

The way the players started out this morning follows:

L. R. Freeman, Wollaston, vs. R. B. Gorton, Brae-Burn; G. F. Willett, country, vs. F. Ouimet, Brookline; W. Hunter, Exeter, vs. S. Sampson, Brae-Burn; Dr. Edwards, Belmont, vs. S. Cleveland Naps Visit President

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Members of the Cleveland American League baseball team paid their respects to President Wilson. "Larry," the bull terrier mascot, owned by Jack Graney, trailed the baseball players into the President's office.

As the players filed by, the President smilingly remarked that he was a bit cautious about the baseball grip, but was glad always to shake hands with visiting players.

Red Sox Tickets Free

Watch for the little numbered checks now being distributed broadcast by the Boston AMERICAN. Each check contains a number. A list of one hundred numbers is being printed in the "SPORTING EXTRA EDITION" each day. These numbers are duplicates of the numbers on the small checks which have been and are being distributed. If you, Mr. Fan, haven't yet received any of these checks, ask your newsdealer or newsboy for them.

All you have to do is to compare the number on your check with the list of numbers printed in the "SPORTING EXTRA EDITION" of the AMERICAN and when a duplicate of the number which is on the check you hold appears in the AMERICAN, bring or send same to the Promotion Department, No. 5 Winthrop square and you will receive a free ticket to any one of the Red Sox games on the home grounds.

Last year, thousands of AMERICAN readers were guests of this paper at Fenway Park and, at the expense of the AMERICAN, helped root for the 1912 pennant.

Here's your opportunity to do the same thing this year.

The tickets being distributed are for grand stand seats too! Rather an inexpensive way to see the games, isn't it, fans? But it's true—one hundred numbers a day—and if your number isn't printed today, it may appear tomorrow.

Watch your number carefully. When the duplicate of the number on your check appears in the "SPORTING EXTRA EDITION" of the AMERICAN, it means a free Red Sox ticket FOR YOU and the best in the grounds.

Watch for today's list of numbers in the "SPORTING EXTRA EDITION" of the AMERICAN out at 6:30 p. m.

Eayrs has been the mainstay of the Brown team this season, and has done brilliant work. He is a southpaw, possessing a free delivery, a deceptive drop and a great change of pace. PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 19—If such a thing as a Boston team winning three straight games in Pittsburgh ever occurred before it must have been so far back that it has completely passed from the memory of the oldest fan here, but that is what has taken place during the past three days.

Moreover, the militant warriors from Massachusetts, having had a real taste of Buccaneer blood, are wild for more, and loudly and boldly proclaim that they will make it four in a row today. Clarke's men dare not say nay, for things have transpired here and elsewhere to the Pirates this season that have never been heard of before, and neither players nor fans know just what to expect next.

Manager Stallings said this morning that in all probability he would send Bill James to the firing line today in an effort to capture the final. Bill warmed up yesterday with Tyler, and showed good form, but Stallings decided to use the left-hander because he knew that Clarke was going to send in a portsider.

If James can do as well as his teammate did yesterday, or as Hub Perdue did on Tuesday, the chances are that the Pilgrims' boast of a clean sweep will be realized.

Manager Stallings is not greatly worried over the suspension of McDonald for three days, following his run-in with Emslie on Tuesday. He says Artie Devlin is in good form, and he showed it yesterday.

Clarke will use Babe Adams today in an endeavor to break the Pirates' losing streak, and prevent the Pilgrims from making a clean sweep of the series. The Boston team starts East tonight, after one of the most successful western invasions a Boston team has made in a decade and a half.

B. A. A. IS NOT TRYING TO GET STAR ATHLETES

By THOMAS J. HALPIN.

Quarter-Mile Champion of United States and Canada.

In a recent article published in a New York paper, a sporting writer accuses the Boston A. A. of scouring the country for athletes in order to strengthen its track team for the coming national championships, which will be held at Chicago on July 6. In the same article the writer claims that the Boston club will send on a team of thirty-five athletes to compete in Chicago.

The B. A. A. has never sought an athlete to join its ranks and probably never will. Every man enrolled in that organization has been a duly elected member and in the case of Caldwell, Robertson and Whitney, the men mentioned, they have been members of the B. A. A. for over a year. Robinson, who caused such a sensation this Spring by his wonderful running, competed in the national championships last year under the colors of the B. A. A. Whitney has been a member of the local club for a number of years, while Caldwell was a member of all of the relay teams of the Unicorn Association during the past year. He has competed over a score of times for the Back Bay club.

Hope to Win at Chicago.

The B. A. A. will make an effort to win the Chicago meet this year, but the effort will not be any stronger than previous years. The local club is fully aware that it has not got as good opportunities to develop a team as have the Irish-American A. C. and the New York A. C. Every athlete who competes for the Back Bay club does so for the enjoyment he gets out of good clean competition in athletics. None of the athletes has ever been made any offers to join the association, and as is shown by the lineup of the club's entry lists, the majority of the star athletes in the club have been developed by that organization.

Up to a short while ago, the B. A. A. was considered a joke by the New York associations, as the athletes representing it were very young and inexperienced. The New York clubs had the services of seasoned athletes who had gone through many hard races.

Gotham Athletes Going Back.

These athletes are at the present time on the decline, and as the Gotham clubs have not paid the attention towards developing new men that they should have, they are at the present time woefully weak in star point scorers. The B. A. A. has not the services of any star men and in many of the field events the Unicorn will not be represented.

It is impossible to see how the B. A. A. can win the championships with a number of fair men, while both the New York A. C. and the Irish-American A. C. have the services of a few athletes who will score half the total number of points scored by their team.

SOX FIGHT FOR FOURTH GAME

The Red Sox will wind up their series with the Detroit Tigers at Fenway Park this afternoon. Three games have already been played and two of them have resulted in victories for Stahl's men. The champions will fight hard to make it three out of four.

The Red Sox are severely crippled by the loss of Heinie Wagner, who is out of the game for at least a week with blood poisoning. Wagner is one of the brainiest and gamest baseball players in the business, and his loss, even if it will be but for a short time, is sure to be felt greatly by the Red Sox.

The champions also need Wagner's services at the present time, as they open a five-game series with the Athletics in Philadelphia tomorrow.

Janvrin will play shortstop in the absence of Wagner. Janvrin is a good ball player, but he is not steady and has a habit of slipping up at a critical moment.

"Buck" O'Brien will probably pitch for the Red Sox today, while Jean Dubuc may perform in the box for the visitors.

Snell of Brown is Badly Hurt

PROVIDENCE, June 19—While getting a foul tip off "Daff" Gammons's bat today in the varsity-alumni game at Andrews Field, Walter H. Snell, the Brown catcher who has signed with the Philadelphia Athletics, received a serious injury to the thumb of his right hand. The bone was dislocated at the base and protruded through the flesh.

Schmidt Is Beaten.

HOLYOKE, Eng., June 19—Harold H. Hilton, the British amateur golf champion of 1913, defeated W. Heinrich Schmidt of Worcester, Mass., by one hole. It was Hilton who put Schmidt out of the contest in the British championship at St. Andrew's, three weeks ago.

Pelky Tried for Death of M'Carty

CALGARY, Alberta, June 19—The trial of Arthur Pelky, the prize fighter who was boxing in the ring in this city, with Luther McCarty at the time of the latter's death on May 24 last on charges growing out of McCarty's death, began today in the Supreme Court.

Chief Justice Harvey presided at the opening of the trial. Sentiment here has run strong against prize fighting since the McCarty tragedy as evidenced by the booting of Burns' arena, in which the fight was held.

The trial of Tommy Burns, promotor of the fight and owner of the arena, has been postponed until Fall. It will probably come up the second week in October in the Fall assizes.

American Jockey Suspended at Ascot

LONDON, June 19—E. Huxley, an American jockey was suspended for the balance of the racing season at Ascot because he crossed another horse in a race. He was suspended on June 6 for the remainder of the Epsom season for causing an accident which resulted in the death of a horse.

HOUCK TO BATTLE CHIP HERE

The Atlas A. A. has arranged a match between two of the leading middleweights in the country for its show next Tuesday evening. Leo Houck of Lancaster Pa., and George Chip, the Madison miner, are the men who have been selected to furnish the feature bout of twelve rounds. The weight will be 160 pounds at 3 o'clock, which will allow both men to show at their best.

This will be the first match of an elimination series of bouts in the middleweight division which the Atlas A. A. is going to run to try and find the real middleweight champion. The club has secured the consent of Jimmy Gardner, Frank Klaus, Jack Dillon and Buck Crouse to show in the series.

Klaus and Gardner will probably be the next team to show. The winner of each match will meet the winner of another match, and so on until the men in that class will be eliminated, leaving one who will be recognized as the champion. As the bouts will be for a decision there should be no doubt as regards the standing of the winner to claim the middleweight title.

Leo Houck and George Chip should furnish a bout full of excitement. Houck has not shown in this city since his match with Buck Crouse. The men who saw that bout were satisfied that Houck was the winner beyond any question of doubt, though the referee decided in favor of Crouse.

George Chip is making his first appearance in Boston, but he should make a hit with the fans from the start. Chip is of the rugged, willing type of boxer who believes in carrying the battle to his opponent all the time. His bouts with Jack Dillon, Buck Crouse, Leo Houck, Billy Berger, and in fact all the leading middleweights, have made him a favorite con in the principal clubs this side of the Mississippi River. Chip is confident he will be a winner over Houck as he has already bested him two in decision bouts and knows his style.

THE TRIPLE TIE

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

The Most Absorbing New Serial Any Newspaper Has Published in Years

What Has Gone Before

GORDON KELLY, a young man from the mountains, who says that he has never played on any ball club and test he has never even seen a ball game in his life, joins the Atlanta club and by his phenomenal pitching becomes the sensation of the baseball world and the Boston Red Sox pay the record price for him. In the meantime, he meets and falls in love with Mildred Deery, daughter of Gaius Deery, a rich timber speculator. In his first game in Atlanta Gordon hits a terrific smash. He sends in three runs, but in sliding for home he crashes into the catcher, is knocked unconscious and nearly killed. Mildred Deery runs on the field and takes his head in her lap. He awakes after Gordon Kelly leaves the hospital he disappears as if from the face of the earth.

While Gaius Deery reads in the papers of how his daughter figured on the ball field, plans Clandestrunk and arranges to take her up to his bungalow in the mountains. Forrest Cain, a rich young man, who has become Gordon's rival, is courting Mildred. He follows her and calls on her every day, although he is ordered back to Atlanta by his sister's illness. One day Mildred goes out for a spring trip with Elmer Shepherd, a boy, and is surprised by the sudden appearance of Gordon Kelly. For a moment he holds her in his arms, and they are interrupted by Elmer. Gordon says he lives there.

Forrest Cain returns to the mountains and takes Mildred to ride. He asks her to be his wife and when she refuses he becomes ugly. Gordon and Elmer come upon them and Cain tries to shoot Gordon, but a stone thrown by the boy knocks the pistol from his hand. Cain, while enraged against Gordon, meets a mountaineer and makes him a proposition, as a result of which he rides up into the mountains and meets four rough-looking men and gives them money.

Mildred and Gordon become engaged. He takes her to see his home, which proves to be a splendid property on which his father spent over two millions. He tells her how he has lived there all his life and of his father's tragic death. Then he shows Mildred and Elmer the ball field and gymnasium in which he had been exercising for years. Although his income was over a million a year, he became crazy over baseball through reading about it, he says, but now he has something he cares more for than he does for baseball.

Now Go On with the Story

Copyright, 1913, by International News Service

CHAPTER XXXVI. (Continued)

THE days that followed her mother's coming were the happiest of Mildred's life, and of Gordon's too. Mrs. Deery quickly saw the turn affairs had taken; just is to say, she saw the turn, but she did not see all the way around the turn. She knew the two young people were much taken up with each other, but she did not know there had been an avowal. She had always liked Gordon and after Mildred had told her his life story and she had learned of his people and saw the great mansion he lived in, she liked him all the more. She certainly made no move to stop the friendship between her daughter and Gordon Kelly. At Mildred's request she did not tell her husband of Gordon's presence in the mountains, on the ground that the news might leak out and make things very annoying for everybody concerned.

A Happy Month

And so the days passed swiftly by. Mrs. Deery and Mildred were frequent guests at the mansion, and some of the dinners that were served there were marvels of good cooking and good taste. Gordon had kept up the establishment just as his parents had.

A happy month passed. One day Gordon telephoned to Mildred that some repairs were necessary to a part of the telephone system on the estate, and as he was the only electrician on the place he begged for enough time off to mend things. With Steve to help him he started off up the brook and after a walk of more than a mile came to the box that was out of order. He examined it carefully. There were evidences that it had been tampered with and he puzzled his brain to account for it. Who could have done it? Certainly no one connected with the estate.

A particular tool which he did not have with him was necessary in order to make the repairs and he sent Steve back to fetch it. While the boy was on his errand Gordon's attention was attracted to a gathering of dark and angry clouds away off to the southwest. As they grew to inky blackness and gray edges began to form, his practiced eye told him that a storm of magnitude was brewing. As he stood viewing the phenomena there suddenly came from the clouds a blinding flash of lightning, followed by the crash and deafening roar of thunder that could be heard for miles around. Instantly there shot out of the clouds a whirling, conical mass. The huge, black cone of clouds struck the earth and swept up the valley, sucking into its vortex everything with which it came in contact, uprooting trees and clearing the land as if everything were moved down by a mammoth scythe in the hands of the giant, Antaeus.

On Wings of a Cyclone

From where Gordon stood the wild windstorm seemed to be rushing directly toward him with twice the speed of the fastest express train, cutting a path five hundred feet wide. Even as he looked the tornado, with a rush and a roar, swept up between the mansion and the huge granite rock in the valley. Gordon dashed for the brook to seek some sheltering bank, but ere he could reach it the cyclone was upon him, or at least the edge of it, and he was picked up as thought he was a chip of wood, carried forty feet in the air and hurled to the opposite side of the brook, where he lay stunned.

When Gordon came to his senses he found himself surrounded by four rough-looking men, dressed in the garb of the mountaineer. They assisted him to his feet and he worked his arms, legs and body to ascertain if there were any bones broken. Finding himself apparently sound, he smiled.

"I never rode on the wings of a cyclone before," he said, "and I don't believe I ever want to try it again."

None of the men he addressed made direct reply to this cheerful remark. They stood close to him and eyed him critically. Finally one of them, a black-bearded man, said:

"I reckon you're Gordon Kelly."

"I am," replied Gordon, surprised that the stranger should know that name.

Gordon a Prisoner

As if this answer were a signal for attack, the four men closed in on him. One of them had a rope and he attempted to pinion Gordon's arms. Though taken completely by surprise, Gordon put up a desperate struggle, but was quickly overpowered by the four men, all of whom seemed possessed of uncommon strength. His arms were tied behind his back and he was commanded to walk forward.

"What's the meaning of this?" demanded the prisoner.

The man with the black beard answered.

"I reckon nothin' ain't goin' to harm yer, if yer obey orders. If yer don't we'll make yer. Come along."

But Gordon refused to move. He said in a calm voice:

"Just tell me what this all about, will you, please? You've made a mistake. I have done nothing to you. You've got the wrong man."

"You ain't done nothin' to us, but you're the man we want. Come along, now." The black-bearded man drew a six-shooter from his pocket and grasped the weapon by the barrel. "I don't want to hit yer with this yere pistol, but I reckon I'll have to unless yer do what I tell yer."

Gordon saw that all four men were armed, though the black bearded man was the only one to make a display. Resistance was useless and might bring him needless injury, so without further words he walked ahead in the direction indicated, feeling that in a short time the whole thing would be explained and he would be allowed to go free. His captors followed the brook for nearly a mile, and then turned off toward the northwest. They crossed the path of the cyclone, which had long since passed in its fury, leaving destruction in its wake, and continued on through thick forests and over rough and wild mountain country. Gordon tried to secure some information from the men, but they did not reply to his questions.

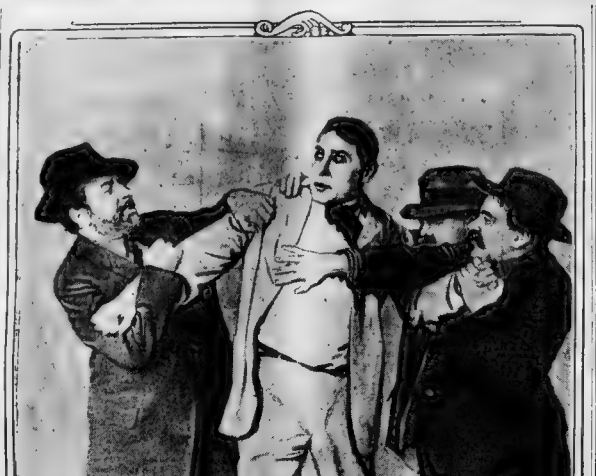
A Long Walk

Finally, after walking northwesterly for about three miles, Gordon judged, they came to Pew Creek, the stream that flowed past the settlement bearing the same name nearly fourteen miles to the south of where they were. The prisoner knew the country well, especially the land bordering the creek. He knew not where his captors were taking him, but at least he was familiar with the ground. The bearded man, leading the way—he seemed to be the leader of the four—followed the creek for another mile until he struck the main road. Before reaching the road, however, the party stopped, while one of the men went ahead as a scout, evidently to make sure the road was clear. He waved a signal to advance and the others did so, crossing a bridge where the creek met the road and then plunging due west through another forest. They were getting on higher ground all the time and finally came to a clearing. Then, making a sharp ascent of about one hundred yards, they descended rapidly for another hundred yards and came to a small clump of trees, with underbrush growing high all around it. Walking straight ahead, the bearded man parted the underbrush and with Gordon following close, they passed through it and arrived at a log cabin, evidently of recent construction.

By this time it was almost dark. One of the men stepped inside the cabin and lighted two or three tallow candles, after which he set about preparing the evening meal. When the candles were glowing, the bearded man motioned Gordon to enter, which he did, the others following. Gordon glanced around. There were five rough bunks, with a straw on them for bedding. There was no stove, but there was a fireplace in a corner, with a small chimney leading up from it, built of sticks of wood plastered with clay. The only article of furniture in the room was a rude bench. The bearded man then spoke the first words he had uttered since the march began. He said to Gordon:

"Yer won't be hurted none unless yer try to escape. Then we'll shoot." He untied the rope that bound Gordon's arms, one of the other men standing by with a revolver in his hand, and added: "Maybe yer better git in one of them bunks till grub is ready."

To Be Continued Tomorrow.



As if this answer were a signal for attack, the men closed in on him. Though taken completely by surprise, Gordon put up a desperate struggle, but was quickly overpowered by the men, all of whom seemed possessed of uncommon strength.

HUSBAND TIRED OF SEEING HER SUFFER

Procured Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which made His Wife a Well Woman.

Middletown, Pa.—"I had headache, backache and such awful bearing down pains that I could not be on my feet at times and I had organic inflammation so badly that I was not able to do my work. I could not get a good meal for my husband and one child. My neighbors said they thought my suffering was terrible.

My husband got tired of seeing me suffer and one night went to the drug store and got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told me I must take it. I can't tell you all I suffered and I can't tell you all that your medicine has done for me. I was greatly benefited from the first and it has made me a well woman. I can do all my housework and even helped some of my friends as well. I think it is a wonderful help to all suffering women. I have got several to take it after seeing what it has done for me."—Mrs. EMMA ESPENSHADE, 19 East Main st., Middletown, Pa.

The Pinkham record is a proud and honorable one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of woman—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

All our testimonials are guaranteed genuine and truthful. The original of each came to us entirely unsolicited. They are sincere expressions of gratitude for actual benefits received from the medicine.

Up-to-the-Minute Jokes

"They say that Tennyson frequently worked a whole afternoon on a single line."

"That's nothing. I know a man who has been working the last six years on one sentence."

Referring to a public man's aversion to being spic and span, a country paper announced:

"Mr. Maguire will wash himself before he assumes the office of town councillor."

This made Maguire furious, and he demanded an apology, which appeared thus:

"Mr. Maguire requests us to deny that he will wash himself before he assumes the office of town councillor."

Oddly enough, this only enraged Maguire the more.

A clever convict, who wanted more than the regular prison fare, once made a complaint in rather ingenious terms. An inspector entered the man's cell and found it very hot and stuffy.

"Why have you got your ventilator closed?" he asked.

The prisoner answered plaintively: "Well, Inspector, the last time I had the ventilator open a wasp flew in, you see, and carried off my dinner while my back was turned."

A short time ago a commercial traveler, who is a great wag, caused some amusement in a hotel.

On arriving at the hotel he made his way to the office to register. As he glanced down the list of guests, he was seen to smile, seize a pen and sign.

His entry followed immediately that of "Lord Boston and valet," and read, "J. Dictionary and valise."

To Grow Hair on a Bald Head

BY A SPECIALIST

Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair who, having tried nearly every advertised hair tonic and hair grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomfort. Yet their case is not hopeless, the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and is also unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original color, stopping hair from falling out, and destroying the dandruff germ. It will not make the hair grow, and can be put up by any druggist: Bay Rum, 6 ounces, Lavoris de Composee, 2 ounces, Menthol Cristal, one-half drachm. If you want it perfumed, add half to one teaspoonful of Peruvian Heliotrope, which mixes perfectly with the other ingredients. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists, and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics.

DRUGGISTS have been called upon so frequently to mix a hair tonic according to the famous formula above mentioned that druggists, both in America and Europe, are now having it compounded at laboratories in New York, London and Paris and sell it ready for immediate use under the name of LAVOLA COMPOUND. Sold on the Satisfaction-Guaranteed-or-Money-Back plan.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

WIFE, sed Pa to Ma last evening, we are going to a real old fashuned dance, you & me & little Bobbie. Eddie Crowley invited us. It is at the lake, & it will talk us back to the sweet days of childhood. That is why I always like to go to a old fashuned dance, sed Pa. No frills, no social obligashuns, no form. Just plain fun, sed Pa. Natural peopul acting natural, & forgitting for the fleeting hours of the dance the cares & sorrows of their workaday lives, sed Pa.

You seem to be very enthusiastic about this country dance, sed Ma. Whare was you & Mister Crowley wen you made this appointment for tonite? You are the greatest hand, sed Ma, for meeting a frend at 4 in the afternoon & having an evening arranged for without con-sulting youre wife. You mite at least have fomed me, Ma sed. Besides, I havent a thing to ware up here. I left all my good clothes in the city.

VERY INNOCENT

Bless yure hart, sed Pa, this leent going to be a dress up affare. I am going in my blue sute that I use to go bathing in. Pa sed, & my blue flannel shirt. aint eeven going to shave, Pa sed. I am going up to that dance & be one of Nature's nobelmen, like the rest of them honest farmers. Ware the frock you have on, sed Pa & let Bobbie go the way he is.

Ma dident like the idea of going to the country dance very much, because most of the plans that Pa makes on short notis always turns out wrong, but wen she seen that Pa was bound to go & bound to go unshaved she sed Very well. So we went.

On the way to the dance Pa was telling us how he liked to be one of the sturdy men that lives away from cities. I guess I was always intended to be a ruff, plain man, sed Pa. Sumbody life to the big cities never changed me much.

Ma dident say anything. She & I has herd Pa talk so often about being a ruff, plain man that we are used to it. Pa leent ruff like the men that does hard & dangerous work at all. The only way he is ruff is wen he has on a blue flannel shirt like the other men that is used to them, & Pa's blue flannel shirt always itches him.

A GOOD JOKE

We had a good joak on Pa wen we got to the dance. Ma & me thot from the way Pa had been talking that the dance was going to be in a barn somware, but instead it was in a nice hall called Fred Gales Pavilyun. There was a swell band & a lot of nice looking peepul. Mister Crowley met us thare & he was all dressed up fine & the girl he had with him was dressed fine too. Ma dident care, because the dress she had on was nice like all her dresses is, & I was dolled up too, but I saw Mister Crowley look at Pa's ashing clothes & blue flannel shirt. Pa dident say anything tho. There was only two or three ruff looking men thare, & wen Pa got to talking to them he found out that they was liverymen wich had drove peepul to the dance.

They only herd two square dances all the evening & wen Pa got in one of the sets I herd sum ladies say: The country dent know how to dance. Wen they was going around grand rite & left the other ladies in Pa's set would dent give him thare rite hands or thare left hand eether. Pa had a miserabul time but the Wood calm wen we sat down to the big supper at midnite & a man calm over & told Pa that there was separate tables for the help. Ma calls Pa her Nature's noabelman now.

Moths and Flames

By EDEN E. GREVILLE

POOR silly moth, you flutter to your doom;
He does not seek your love, he does not care;
But he allows you, during evening's gloom,
To hold his hand, or else to stroke his hair.

The lake, the light, the beauty of the scene,
The tenderness with which you play your part,
Leave him quite calm, untroubled and serene;
His vanity is touched, but not his heart.

You seek to bind him closely to your side
With benefits and favors given free;
A maiden's duty and a maiden's pride
Should ever guard her heart and liberty.

When he returns to business and to life,
You'll be but one who lightly crossed the path;
You'll have no part in all the daily strife,
No place within his home or on his hearth.

Then rouse yourself before it is too late;
Others may sympathize, but you must bleed
In battle to escape your deadly fate;
Do not forget that you yourself must lead.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE man with a surplus of wealth and idle time, and the too-often attending poverty of heart, brain and soul, awakens to manhood with the discovery that he holds in one hand a candle and in the other hand matches, called Pride, Vanity, Passion, Power and Self, with which to light it.

The devil is generous with his equipment, and never partial. The young man with the unlighted candle looks around him and sees that many other men are similarly equipped. They have lighted their candles and are making merry with the moths that are attracted by the flame.

They shout in triumph as moth after moth circles too near the flame, is burned and drops to the floor. And the man with the greatest number of moths around his candle shouts the loudest, for is he not the greatest hero among mankind?

Some day, perhaps, these candles will burn in their sockets, and before they expire a fiery flame will shoot forth from every candle, burning the hand of the man who holds it. But that is a long time away, and many men are never burned, so why fret the merry present with thoughts of a troubled future?

So all light their candles and more moths flutter in—soft and white and graceful. A shower of failing from Heaven seemed never sweeter.

ONLY MOTHS

These silly moths see many things in the flames that were never there. They see love, warmth of heart and soul, caresses, ease, luxury and fine raiment, and of all these little alluring, blinding, dazzling lights shot out from the flames none has as great power to attract as the light that promises fine raiment.

The moths are soft, pretty, silly, brainless things. So brainless they would sell their souls for fine clothes and think they got the best of the bargain. Every flutter of their wings that brings them nearer the flames tells of this intention.

Poor little things! If they sold only their souls the price would be small enough, but this world has a way of refusing to leave all punishment to the next, and they sell more than their souls. They sell their peace and happiness in this life as well as all hope for the next.

There is no garment so fine that it is worth the price paid for it in the moth-and-candle market. Storm-tossed, dragged, beaten, oppressed, abandoned and dishonored, the soft, satiny raiment with which the moth has attired herself makes poor protection against the elements whose wrath her vanity has invoked.

The satisfaction of vanity is the shortest lived of all sentiments; the moth soon finds that attire can be never so fine that a happy, contented heart beats under the scarlet letter of shame pinned on the breast.

NO CONCEALMENT

No girl ever enjoyed a luxury that was not won honestly that the world did not find it out. No girl ever flicked fine raiment out of the flames of a candle held out to her by a young man that the world did not know it.

"I was too young," a poor girl will plead, "to know I was doing wrong."

"No girl," replies the world, "is ever so young that she is not old enough to know better."

It saw no soft, alluring lights in the flames; it saw only dishonor and degradation. It neither forgives nor forgets the girl. It may condemn the man, but it never punishes him. It is always on the breast of a woman that the scarlet letter burns.

It is always the woman who pays.

Revelations of High English Society

By LADY DOROTHY NEVILL

A GRANDE DAME and leader of the social world during the greater part of the past century, Lady Dorothy Nevill, who died recently, was famous for her charm of manner, incisive wit and brilliant repartee. She was the confidante of royal personages, statesmen, field marshals and diplomatists. At her receptions one met all the most attractive people of the day. Her intimate friends included such noted men as Beaconsfield, Gladstone, Wilberforce, Cobden, Bright and Matthew Arnold. Her greatest friend, perhaps, was Beaconsfield. He was always "Dear Dizzy" to Lady Dorothy, while he always addressed her as "My Dearest Dorothy," and their correspondence provides many interesting glimpses of this great Tory statesman.

Perhaps one of the best stories which Lady Dorothy has told about Disraeli is that concerning the occasion when a photographer asked him to pose for a photograph leaning on a chair. This at once aroused the indignation of Mrs. Disraeli. "I soon settled that," she said, afterwards, to Lady Dorothy, when relating the incident, "for I said, 'Dizzy has always stood alone, and he shall continue to do so.'"

"THE GORGEOUS LILY"

On one occasion Lady Dorothy, who was sitting next to Mr. Gladstone, was asked by the latter if she had ever heard Lord Beaconsfield express any particular fondness for the primrose. She admitted he had not, adding, "The gorgeous lily, I think, was more to his taste."

Referring to Gladstone, Lady Dorothy used to tell a story which is illustrative of the "Grand Old Man's" character. He was discoursing to her of the perfect immunity of English public men from all dangers of assault or assassination in his day, and all the time two detectives, dressed as footmen, were in the very room guarding him while another was up-stairs in the drawing room ready to mingle with the guests.

VIEWS ON SUFFRAGETTES

It was Mr. Joseph Chamberlain who, talking to Lady Dorothy of female suffrage, once said, "Thanks goodness, there are no female members. Of the two evils I prefer Lady Astor to petticoats."

Lady Dorothy herself was equally severe in regard to suffragettes, for in one of her books she writes: "Heaven did not make women fascinating and persuasive that they might be peevish. It did not make them feeble that they might be imperious; it did not give them softer voices than man in order that they might rail at him; not delicate features to be destroyed. Angry women forget themselves and the dignity of their sex, which has never gained much by scolding."

HUSBAND OR BUTLER

Lady Dorothy Nevill had a good deal to say about the change that has taken place in the character and the manners of women since her own earlier days. She considered the modern woman is spoilt, has too much time on her hands, takes too many fads, and completely dominates her husband. This struck the old Shah of Persia very much. He said: "It seems to me that the English and American husband is nothing better than a sort of butler."

Lady Dorothy was particularly severe on the "smart set" of today. "The elite," she said, "are fast, flippant and smart. People are less interesting to talk to, less sociable, less brilliant in conversation, less interesting in things." And as an illustration of the change in the life of a society woman, who today thinks nothing of spending $5,000 a year on her dress, she mentions how she and her sister were given a dress allowance of $250 and $200 respectively by their adoring father.

She was also wont to refer to the fact that in her younger days parents were very particular about the matrimonial alliances made in their families, and she told an amusing story of one old peer who was greatly surprised to be told by his sister that she had developed a great affection for a well-known scientist of humble birth.

The peer sent for him and said, brusquely, "Now, sir, I should like to know something about your family."

"I think it will be sufficient," replied the scientist, who was of Semitic extraction, "to say that I descended from the illustrious blood of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob."

The peer was taken aback. "Oh," he said, "of course, my family has nothing to compare with that; therefore, if my sister really likes you, you'd better take her."

LEAP YEAR PROPOSALS

This reminds one of another story which Lady Dorothy relates in one of her books concerning an East Anglican clergyman who was visited by a lady parishioner and asked whether he thought a woman might, in any circumstances, propose to a man. Much taken aback, the poor rector replied that he certainly thought there might be circumstances which would make such a proposal justifiable. Upon which, without the slightest hesitation, the lady exclaimed, "As Nathan said unto David, 'Thou art the man.'" And, seeing no possibility of escape, he was.

Speaking of the amusements of girls in her time, Lady Dorothy said that in the sixties, when old-fashioned croquet occupied most of her attention it was supposed to be responsible for many marriages. "Are you going to make a flower-bed, here, Thomas?" asked a young lady of the gardner. "Yes, mum, them's the borders. Why, it will quite spoil our croquet ground." "Can't help it, miss. Them's yer pa's borders. He sez as 'ow to have it laid out for 'orticulture, not 'usbandry."

Lady Dorothy also numbered the late King Edward among her personal friends. Once, sitting next to him at dinner, he noticed she ate oysters with a knife. He made a humorous comment, and the next morning presented her with a beautiful case of oyster knives, and in the note which accompanied them said: "In remembrance of your criminal tendency."

BIG MISTAKE

Bluffers bounced into the club, jammed his hat down on a table with a fierce resounding bang, and flung himself into an easy chair.

"What's wrong today, Bluffers? You look bad."

"I'll never forgive myself. I kicked a man out of my house last night!"

"Humph! I've kicked out many a one. Young fellow, I suppose?"

"No; past middle age."

"Well, these old codgers have no business to be coming round courting young girls. I would have kicked him out myself."

"Yes; but I have found out since that this man wasn't courting my daughter. He was after my mother-in-law."

Foresight

"Mr. Grimes," said the rector to the churchwarden, "we had better take up the collection before the sermon this morning."

"Indeed!"

"Yes; I'm going to preach on economy."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

PERHAPS SHE HAS REASONS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen and in love with a girl as old as I. I asked her to keep company with me and she accepted. She went out with me six times, and now she has not kept company with me for two weeks. She is always friendly to me.

HARRY.

ASK for an explanation. Perhaps she realizes that a boy of eighteen is too young to be taken seriously. If this is the case, the time is not far distant when you will agree that she is right.

DO NOTHING

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am sixteen and in love with a man two years my senior. He comes to the house whenever he feels like it. When I see him at a dance or basket ball game he doesn't even ask me for a dance or take me home. What shall I do to win his love?

VIRGINIA.

YOU are care-free; you will be so no longer after you have won the love of a man. Let all such heavily-burdened joys wait five years.

DON'T WRITE AGAIN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am seventeen and love a man of twenty-one. His best friend spoke disrespectfully to him of me and disrespectfully to me of him. He believes this friend, and though I have written to him denying the charges made against me, he refuses to believe me.

BRIGHT EYES.

HE has no faith in you and love without faith is such a frail structure it never lasts. Don't write again. You are only seventeen, and can well afford to wait a few years.

THIS WILL NOT SUFFICE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

What do you think of a young man who has just reached the age when a girl would be the most agreeable companion, and although flattered by many sue, turns a cold shoulder to them, and in spite of disagreements my love grows stronger every day.

A. S.

THE right girl will appear some day to open his eyes to the difference between friendship and love.

PROPOSE AT ONCE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

For two years I have been calling on a young lady two years my junior. I love her dearly, and I know my love is returned. Sometimes I feel as though my time is wantonly drifting by calling on her because she sometimes refuses to listen to me when I feel like proposing, and the next night she is all in a flutter awaiting me. I earn a good salary and feel that I can support a wife. With this view in mind I am almost on the verge of proposing. Then I lose all courage. Please advise me, as I am a total wreck.

N. B.

PUT an end to your misery by proposing on one of these nights when she is all in a flutter. The longer you delay it the less courage you will have.

Recovered From Severe Lung Trouble

Plenty of fresh air and good food are necessary to persons suffering from lung trouble, but something more is needed to bring about full health. Eckman's Alterative is a medicine for throat and lung troubles, and so many reports have been received showing that it brought about good results in a number of cases which were declared hopeless, that all sufferers who are not benefiting otherwise should at least investigate what it has done for others. Investigate this case:

Madison Lake, Minn.

"Gentlemen: In December, 1906, March, 1909, and September, 1909, I was taken with hemorrhages of the lungs which confined me several weeks, each time to my bed. My doctor advised me to go West.

"In November I started for Denver, Colo. After my arrival I met Michael Brody, who, upon learning of my condition, urged me to take Eckman's Alterative. In about two months I began to feel better, I kept on taking the medicine and improved fast. In March, 1910, I returned home, a well man, and have well, have enjoyed good appetite and sleep. When I left Denver my weight was 130 pounds. I now weigh 165, my normal weight. I thank God and your Alterative for my health.

What It Proved

A quack doctor was holding forth about his "medicine" to a rural audience.

"Yes, gentlemen," he said, "I have sold these pills over a twenty-five years and never heard a word of complaint. Now what does that prove?"

From a voice in the crowd came: "That dead men tell no tales."

CURRENCY BILL PROVIDES 15 RESERVE BANKS RUN BY FEDERAL BOARD OF NINE

NEW YORK, June 19.—Fifteen regional Federal reserve banks, with central control through a Federal board of nine, are provided by the final draft of the administration's currency reform bill.

The New York AMERICAN today prints the full text of the measure which the business world is eagerly awaiting.

The measure, which will be known as the Owen-Glass bill, provides:

First—Fifteen regional Federal reserve banks.

Second—Central control through a Federal board of nine members, three chosen by the banks, three by members of the Cabinet, and three appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate.

Third—Proposed new Federal reserve notes limited to $500,000,000.

Fourth—Security for these notes may be government or State bonds or approved commercial paper.

Fifth—National bank depositories to be superseded by the Federal reserve banks.

Sixth—Board of control given authority to fix rates of interest.

Seventh—Headquarters of the Federal reserve board to be situated in Washington.

Eighth—Authority given to country banks to lend money on farms.

Ninth—Provision for banks of $1,000,000 or more of capital to establish branch banks in foreign countries.

The text follows:

A bill to provide for the establishment of Federal reserve banks for furnishing an elastic currency and as a means of rediscounting commercial paper and to establish a more effective supervision of banking in the United States and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that the short title of this act shall be the "Federal reserve act."

Section 2—That within sixty days after the passage of this act, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of Agriculture and the comptroller of the currency, acting as a reserve bank organization committee, shall designate from among the reserve cities now authorized by law, a number of such cities to be determined by the said organization committee and to be known as Federal reserve cities, and shall divide the continental United States into districts, each district to contain one of such Federal reserve cities.

Provided that the districts shall be apportioned with due regard to the convenience and customary course of business of the community and shall not necessarily coincide with the area of such State or States as may be wholly or in part included in any given district.

Every national bank within a given district shall be required to subscribe to the capital stock of the Federal reserve bank of that district a sum equal to 20 per cent. of its unimpaired capital, one-half of such subscription to be paid in under the terms and conditions prescribed by the national banking act with reference to the subscriptions to the stock of national banking associations.

TODAYS STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stock markets were rather dull during the morning and prices were irregular and had a recessional disposition. There was not much breadth to local trading in any respect. Boston & Maine advanced a fraction during the first hour and New Haven remained unchanged. United Fruit continued weak and at 151⅛ was off 1⅞. Island Creek common was a strong issue, advancing two points. There was also much business in coppers. In this group Lake was weak.

The New York market had a weak tone in the last half hour of the forenoon, Pound 11 o'clock Union Pacific was 1⅜ lower and Canadian Pacific was down a point. Issues to show fractional losses included Steel, Reading, Interborough Metropolitan preferred, Amalgamated, Erie, Northern Pacific, American Can common, Great Northern preferred, St. Paul and Lehigh Valley. There was much less trading than was done yesterday.

New York Prices Open Lower.

American stocks ranged lower in London today owing in part to less cheerful sentiment towards Hartford. There appears to be some doubts abroad as to acceptance of the dissolution plan. New York at the opening reflected the change in sentiment in London and offerings selling caused recessions ranging from fractions to more than a point. This period of declines was followed by more demand and the tone improved within a few minutes.

Union Pacific was prominent in the early decline. It began at 148, a loss of ⅞, and was soon off 1⅜. Reading began with the best gain, advancing a point to 151. The list presented considerable irregularity. Steel opened strong with a loss of ⅛, but recovered before the end of half an hour. Preferred Iron & Steel advanced ⅝. Reading was again active. This issue opened ⅛ lower, but soon made up its loss and scored a net gain of ⅝.

Among the declines were Missouri Pacific ¼, Amalgamated Copper ¼, Canadian Car & Foundry ¼, American Can ⅝, Great Northern preferred ⅛, Union Pacific rallied ⅝, some of which it lost within the hour. Fractional gains were also scored by Great Northern preferred and Mexican Petroleum.

The Curb was steady.

Judge Lovett is Reticent.

After intimating that certain lawyers had attempted to blackmail him and that dissolution plans had suffered from interference from such sources, Judge Robert S. Lovett, chairman of Union Pacific directors, refused to comment upon the resolution passed by the United States Senate summoning him to appear in Washington before the committee investigating the lobby there.

When Judge Lovett was asked if he would name the "blackmailers," he replied:

"No. I think I have said enough, and perhaps too much."

"Will you announce the names of the men if you are summoned to Washington as a witness?"

"I don't know," replied the Judge. "I can never tell what I will do as a witness."

Judge Lovett said that he had heard nothing of the report from St. Paul that the Circuit Court decree calling for a receiver for Southern Pacific stock is ready for filing.

Wall Street in general believes it has a well-defined idea of the financial wolves who offered to "aid" the Union Pacific.

Why Union Pacific Advanced.

One statement published in New York regarding the stock market is interesting. It reads:

"The buying of Union Pacific was heavy and seemed to come from inside sources, who appeared confident that the United States Circuit Court of St. Paul would approve the plan of the directors for the sale of a block of the stock to the Pennsylvania's.

"The entire market seemed, as a matter of fact, to hinge on the carrying out of this important proposition. Wall Street has feared that the Harriman dissolution would be followed by government prosecution of Pennsylvania, New York Central and other trunk lines which have heavy investments in the securities of competitive systems. The present plan apparently opens the way for redistribution of these securities along lines that will be approved by the Department of Justice.

"This could be accomplished by the general interchange of treasury securities, by means of which the trunk lines would be able to rid themselves of stock illegally held in exchange for securities that the government would regard as legal investments."

London Copper Quotations.

The London copper warrants market opened steady, with both spot and futures unchanged at £65 for the former and £65 2s 6d for the latter.

In New York yesterday small amounts of the metal were offered at 14⅜ cents a pound, thirty days. "It is surprising," it is said in this connection, "the aggregate tonnage that dealers have had at their disposal, according to consumers, who have been approached by them on the subject of purchase."

It is stated that there has been very little buying for several weeks and that recent concessions by leading sellers were made in the hope of stimulating demand. It is believed by many that stocks in the hands of consumers are now so low that there should be no resumption of buying before long, especially at the latest quotations by producers.

Financial News in Brief.

It is said that German bankers have bid 54¼ per cent. in New York for two months loans.

When Illinois Central directors meet in a few weeks to consider dividends, they will have to decide whether to pay the 1 per cent. record of the road or preside for the semi-annual disbursement from actual earnings. Earnings in 1912 were but little more than 2 per cent. owing to flood damage and there was a repetition of the same disaster last Spring.

The Bank of England's minimum discount rate remained unchanged at 4½ per cent. today. The proportion of the bank's reserve to liabilities is now 51.20 per cent. against 51.70 a week ago and compares with a decline from 51.20 to 49⅝ per cent. in the corresponding period last year.

B. F. Yoakum, chairman of the St. Louis and San Francisco board, has been dropped from the payroll by receivers, and this, it is estimated, will save the road $75,000 a year.

The Stewart Mining Company announces that May net profits were $60,-062, or at the annual rate of 60.0 per cent. on the outstanding capital of the corporation.

The New York subtreasury gained $354,000 from the bank yesterday, making a cash net gain of $246,000 since Friday.

The Bank of Bengal has reduced its discount rate from 5 to 4 per cent.

FORBES FINDS SENTIMENT NOW FOR THE BETTER

By B. C. FORBES.

Business Editor of the American.

The Wilson administration has fixed its attitude toward the financial and business worlds. I am told on high authority, and sentiment has undergone a silent but substantial change for the better.

A. Barton Hepburn, a banker of recognized judgment, is understood to have been forcibly impressed by opinions concerning actual conditions here, while James B. Forgan of Chicago has laid enlightening facts before the administration. It is said, regarding the situation throughout the West, President Wilson has now given assurances that he has no desire to "hold aloof," but that on the contrary he is taking steps to keep himself very closely informed of what is happening to finance and business.

THAT WORD OF ENCOURAGEMENT HAS NOT BECOME MORE HOPEFUL OF AVERTING SERIOUS TROUBLE I CAN ANNOUNCE ON FIRST-HAND INFORMATION. THIS IMPORTANT NEWS FORESHADOWS IMPROVEMENT IN THE WHOLE OUTLOOK.

President Wilson is believed to have inspired Secretary McAdoo's statement that $500,000,000 additional currency could be put in circulation.

The remedy against credit inflation given recently at Detroit by Banker Joseph A. Talbert of New York made a profound impression among Western bankers and borrowers, and the strokes have been vigorously applied since. Loans have been cut down in Chicago and New York, the official returns show, and the forthcoming statement of the Comptroller of the Currency will be awaited eagerly. This report is of extreme importance, and will be keenly analyzed.

The financial strain has been relieved also by slackening of the business pace.

July 1 subjects the world's money markets to a pitiless strain. That numbers of concerns and individuals will fail is already evident. London has had three financial failures and Germany yesterday reported two. This ruthless process, however, will leave the whole position sounder and safer.

Instead of swamping the savings banks with funds at the opening of the July half-year, persons of moderate means can safely let their reserves rest and thoroughly safe income from certain securities.

Rhode Island Man Killed by Moros

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Preparations were made today for the funerals of Captain Taylor A. Nichols of the Philippine Scouts, eleven scouts and two regular army privates who were killed in the four days' fighting on Jolo Island, when General Pershing's command finally subdued the ruthless Moros, according to reports to the War Department. Miss Anna Villard, of Arctic, R. I., is a sister of Oliver Villard, G. M., Eighth Infantry, reported killed.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

Upon their return the 150 participants in the three days' outing of the Bay State Automobile Association at the Pine Grove Springs Hotel, Lake Spofford, N. H., were a unit in voting the outing the greatest success in the history of he organization and expressed the wish that such trips could be taken oftener than once a year.

As bowlers, Tom Gleun, Macintyre and Fred Welsh excelled, but the greatest all around performers in golf, bowling, tennis, running and baseball were Charles Howell, Clarence Baker, Marshall Lebon, Eddie Schnou and Walter Williams.

George H. Hobbs has resigned as advertising manager of the United States Tire Company, which has decided to handle its advertising matters through an agency instead of by means of a special department of its own. Mr. Hubbs has been the advertising manager of this company from the time it was organized two years ago.

Robert W. Sykes, Jr., vice-president of the Bowling Advertising Agency of New York city, spent the holiday and yesterday in Boston.

In announcing his resignation as assistant commercial manager of the Maxwell Motor Company, Inc., of Detroit, A. B. Barkman, who has been closely identified with the Maxwell interests since 1906, has caused much surprise. Mr. Barkman becomes Western sales manager for the Hupp Motor Car Company of Detroit and will make San Francisco his headquarters.

Howlands Leave Staff of Outlook

Three Editors Quit; Deny T. R. Crowded Them Out.

NEW YORK, June 19.—William B. Howland has resigned as vice-president and publisher of the Outlook after twenty-three years' service, and, while retaining his considerable share in the ownership of that publication, has purchased a large interest in the Independent. Mr. Howland's two sons, K. W. B. Howland and Harold J. Howland, resigned at the same time.

Considerable mystery surrounded the sudden exodus of the Howlands, but it is denied that Colonel Roosevelt had crowded the others out; in fact, it was said Colonel Roosevelt had nothing whatever to do with the resignation of the Howlands.

Navy Plans Nearly Break Up Wedding

Couple Wed in Everett Without Beat Man, When Virginia Sails.

After two Congressmen and a Mayor had failed to secure the presence of the best man, Miss Mary M. Hill of Everett and Henry C. Pinkier of Lynnfield were married at the home of the bride's uncle, Joseph H. Worthington, at No. 81 School street, Everett.

Lee O. Storer, a cotswain on the battleship Virginia, was the young man originally scheduled to appear as best man. The Virginia left the navy yard yesterday afternoon for Newport.

Congressmen Murray and Curley and Mayor James H. Chambers of Everett were asked to intercede with the captain, but the ship sailed and with it went the "best man."

Claims Cancer of Stomach Curable

MINNEAPOLIS, June 19.—That cancer of the stomach is curable was the declaration of Dr. William D. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., to the American Medical Association in session here. The bare assertion is of the utmost importance coming from a surgeon who has operated on some of the most noted surgeons of America.

"A favorable diagnosis can be established by simple methods," he asserted. "A history of gastric disturbance preceding cancer in a large number, if not the majority of cases. Operations for cancer of the stomach should begin as an exploration. Moderate involvement of the pancreas does not necessarily preclude an operation. Palliative operations have a field of usefulness."

Henry C. Greene, agent for the Conservation of Eyesight, of the Massachusetts Commission for the Blind, stated there are 6,000 needless cases of blindness each year among children.

Harvard and M. I. T. to Work Together

Co-operation between Harvard and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology has reached the first step, after years of debate. An arrangement has been made by which students in public health, biology and sanitary courses in either institution may have the benefit of the corresponding courses in the other.

A combination now declared capable of preparing students for health work in two years.

The executive committee comprises Dr. W. T. Sedgwick, Professor George C. Whipple and Dr. M. J. Rosenau, who will be dean of the school.

Says Dogs Get Care Intended for Babies

HARTFORD, Ct., June 19.—"The reason why so many happy courtships are followed by unhappy marriages is because the young lady hunters give too much time to running after dogs and not enough to building cages for men," said Monsignor James Joseph Fox, S.T.D., of the Catholic University of America, to graduates of Mount St. Joseph Seminary. "Women lavish on dogs the tenderness and care God intended for children that have never been born," he said.

Money AND Life for This Monopoly

Superintendent Woodward, testifying before the Coroner as to the Stamford wreck, said:

"I realize that the New Haven has been unfortunate in the last few years. There seems to have been an epidemic of wrecks. It is just as hard for me as for the public to explain the Bridgeport and Westport (and Stamford) wrecks."

The cause of these wrecks is now, on the contrary, perfectly clear to the public. According to the uncontradicted evidence before the Coroner's inquest, the Westport and the Bridgeport wrecks were due to the defective "cross-overs." The Stamford wreck was due to the defective airbrakes. The railroad company had not one notice, but three, that the brakes were defective.

The Work Book put in evidence showed that on Tuesday—three days before the wreck—Engineer Doherty made his official report that the brakes on locomotive No. 1338 did not work. Doherty testified that John F. Carroll, foreman of the engineers, told him when he took out locomotive No. 1338 "to be careful, as the brakes were not working."

George Ramer, engine dispatcher, was a witness to the conversation between Chief Carroll and Engineer Doherty. And Engine Dispatcher Ramer added: "I told him (Doherty) to start braking far enough back of the stopping point, as the brake on the engine was not working."

Joseph J. Gash, the machinist who received the Doherty report on the defective brakes, testified that he "just looked them over and they appeared to be all right." The same engine was then assigned to Engineer Doherty again on Thursday. Result: Six dead and twenty injured.

E. G. Aitken, station agent at Stamford, testified that he saw Engineer Doherty applying the airbrakes 2,250 feet before the point where the collision occurred. "Even at sixty miles an hour the train would have stopped within 1,000 feet on that grade if the airbrakes had worked."

Why does the New Haven road maintain short "cross-overs"? Why is a triple warning unheeded?

The AMERICAN has shown from official reports that the New Haven Railroad spent a smaller percentage of its earnings in repair of equipment and for maintenance of track than any other conspicuous railroad. It spent, according to last year's official reports, $3,524 per mile for maintenance of equipment, while the only other railroad in the United States comparing with it in density of traffic spent $7,824 per mile.

In ten years past the New Haven Railroad has raised new capital and spent $284,909,900 to buy up trolleys, steamship lines, wharves and dock privileges and competing railroads solely to create a monopoly of traffic. But it has not protected the lives of its passengers, it has not maintained its roadbed, it has not properly repaired its locomotives, and it has not had money to buy enough steel cars.

Can there be a better illustration of the truth of Mr. Brandeis' statement that this railroad has been managed not in the public interest, not even in the interest of its stockholders, but chiefly in the interest of monopoly, adding a new evil to all the other disadvantages of monopoly. As Mr. Brandeis said in his letter to Mr. Hearst, it is a kind of monopoly that demands not only your money or your life, but your money AND YOUR LIFE.

Colonel Roosevelt Knows His Countrymen — The People DO Want an Adequate Navy

Colonel Roosevelt at Bunker Hill chose a fitting occasion to speak in behalf of a larger navy. The result of the battle of Bunker Hill is an object lesson in more than the patriotism of our forefathers. We lost the battle because we had no artillery and ran out of powder.

We had the courage, the intelligence, the cause, but we needed also some more powder and big guns.

But when we dragged the cannon over the snow from Fort Ticonderoga and set them up on Dorchester Heights, WITH POWDER AND BALL IN THEM, we drove the redcoats out of Boston and recaptured Bunker Hill.

Colonel Roosevelt said at Bunker Hill the other night that he knew his countrymen and knew that they would never neglect the means of defending a righteous cause, which is an adequate navy.

Mr. Roosevelt has given ample evidence that he knows his countrymen. Those who have thought he did not know them so well have learned their mistake, sometimes to their sorrow.

"I Wonder How Much for a Hat?"

By George Keller

"$2,500 per annum for clothes is sufficient."—NEWS ITEM.

TWENTY-FIVE HUNDRED a year for clothes!
Gee, Bill, just think of that—
Twenty-five hundred for nothing but clothes!
I wonder how much for a hat?

Why, Daddy works like a slave,
An' he can't get no such clothes, he can't.
An' those 'at he does get are all worn out,
An' comes as a gift from my aunt.

Twenty-five hundred! Whew, what a pile!
An' figurin' on ten bones a suit—
Why, two hundred and fifty new suits each year—
Gosh, that gink must be a beaut'!

Dad brings in six hundred a year,
An' on that we live an' pay rent.
Why can't my daddy have plenty of dough?
Ain't he as good as that gent?

Twenty-five hundred a year for clothes!
Gee, Bill, just think of that!
Twenty-five hundred for nothing but clothes!
I wonder how much for a hat?

Letters from American Readers

CHEER FROM ONE OF DEWEY'S VETERANS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I have read your editorial on an "ample navy" and wish to extend my simple thanks for the firm stand Hearst's papers always take for the common weal.

Being one who entered Manila Bay with Dewey and also trudged along the beaten paths to Pekin with the other "Blue Boys," I feel I have a duty to perform in straining every effort, in my own little sphere, to impress others with the fact that our NAVY is inadequate properly to protect our Atlantic and Pacific seaboards. From nine months' personal observation in Japan I can state that the majority of Japanese fully realize this, and openly boast of the easy task it would be to wrest the Pacific coast from us.

What greater good can the Democratic party do, and what more lasting monument erect, than a navy fully adequate and equipped, commensurate with our territory and population, which would again place us in a position to command the respect of the various peoples of the Occident as well as the Orient, and so insure peace?

The Stranger and the "Small-Town" Girl. He Captivates Her Where Her Beaux of School-days Have Failed

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1913, by the Star Company.

THE menu in your home may be the best in the world; yet, because you are accustomed to it, you find a new zest in food placed before you when you visit other homes, or sit at hotel tables.

The eye, the ear, the mind, the taste all find a keener pleasure in the unaccustomed at certain intervals, even when that which is offered is less admirable.

In an interesting letter which discusses to some length the follies of my own sex, the weakness of his, a question of interest is propounded by a man of culture. After reviewing the numerous tragedies which have occurred from time to time as the result of the infatuation of young women in villages and interior towns through love affairs with strangers, the correspondent says:

"It has always been a great mystery to me why the stranger within our gates has such fascinating attractions for some of our American girls. I shall eschew the engagements and marriages of American heiresses to foreigners. Every one knows the reasons. But the question is a subtle and far-reaching one. Let a total stranger, of good appearance and polite address, come to a town and at once he is the favorite with the girls at the prayer meeting and picnic. The actor, the drummer, the ballplayer, yes even the prizefighter, in competition for the hand and heart of the reigning belle, will nearly always outdistance the Georgies and Charlies and Willies of the town. Is it hero worship, or what is it?"

The Average Girl Dreams of a Lover Waiting for Her Somewhere

To the man or woman who understands what the imaginative and romantic temperament means this question would suggest its own answer.

While familiarity does not always or often breed "contempt," it does destroy, as a rule, romantic illusions.

The average young girl—God bless her!—is possessed of a good share of sentiment and romance in her thoughts of the lover waiting for her somewhere in the world.

She invests him with the qualities most desirable in her estimation and perhaps drawn to some extent from the novels she has read. He is a creature of her dreams and meditations, and it is not to be supposed that she will readily clothe the youth with whom she has played "tag" and "I spy" in the garments of her dreams.

The boy who has been repeatedly punished at school or whipped by an older brother in her presence or who has been the cause of disagreeable neighborhood criticisms because of his oversupply of youthful vitality—the boy who has teased and tormented her and shown all the unattractive traits of the average growing lad is not liable to become her ideal by any sudden transformation.

The stranger who comes to town has passed through all these unattractive phases in his own village, and he may be far less worthy of her admiration and much further removed from the standard of her dreams, free from all crudity, and he seems to her a wholly superior being.

Whatever he may have been in the process of evolution she finds him her finished ideal when they meet.

He has come into her life suddenly, and by the will of kind Providence she believes.

There is a novelty in all he says and does; he has a new trick of pronunciation, or a new set of phrases and he brings the atmosphere of a new world into her monotonous life. He tells her of new scenes, new people.

His Boyish Pranks Are Surrounded with Halo of Charm

It is as if she had listened all her life to one air, and now a new melody is sounded. Harmonies undreamed of become perceptible to the ear of her heart. She listens to his recital of boyish days and pranks, and while the tales he relates differ little from the actions of the boys with whom she has been reared, they are surrounded with a halo of charm in her mind which places his past in a realm quite apart from the commonplace; and it is this commonplace association of neighborhood life which has stood between her dreams and her boy lovers.

Whatever affairs of the heart the stranger may have passed through in his evolving period she has not been a witness thereof nor a confidant of the other maidens in the case, as she has been with her childhood companions.

When he tells her that he loves her she does not recall the fact that two or three years ago he was the devoted cavalier of her sister, or her cousin, or her rival in the high school.

Blessed Is She to Whom Such Dreams Remain Forever!

Even his former sweethearts are invested with a certain mist of romance by her imagination. They were rare creatures, but he passed them all by, waiting for the lady of his dreams.

And the accident of their meeting, the day they first looked into each other's faces, the hour they first spoke—all these incidents are thrilling and wonderful and food for hours of happy memories.

Blessed is she to whom such memories and dreams remain forever surrounded by a romantic halo! For never in any ordinary association of childhood and never in the more commonplace development of friendship into love can there be found quite the depth of joy and sentiment which result from the sudden advent of a great and lasting love.

'TIS JUNE IN THE CITY TOO

By Lilian Lauferty

THE Summer winds sing Summer's song above the city street,
But you never hear the wild-bird's note so full and brave and sweet;
You never see the open road slip from a sunset hill,
While country winds from valleys green are blowing where they will.

In open wolds the poplars tall stand 'gainst a changing sky,
And fronded ferns are swaying as the wind goes sweeping by;
Gay blossoms tint each dawning morn with color's perfumed blaze,
While far horizons breathe of calm through long unshadowed days.

Dear country scenes that lure and call, I cannot come to you:
Each little stirring dream you bring spoils work I have to do;
Yet city winds still whisper with a love note in their tune:
"The city, too, knows magic ways, for all the world's at June."
